CAN'T KEEP MY EYES OPEN

Cold weather and freezing rain can present a multitude of major problems, but there are also a few minor annoyances, like the one encountered by one area motorist who discovered Wednesday night the mechanism which operates the hide-away headlamps on her car had frozen, and would not stay open. A little ingenuity, however, solved the problem. (Photo by Knight)

South Vietnamese Forming Guerrilla 'Liberation Army'

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnamese volunteers are forming a guerrilla "liberation army" under several retired generals of high reputation to invade North Vietnam, the Saigon government reported Wednesday. U.S. officials expressed surprise.

Nguyen Ngoc Linh, director general of information, announced the move without spelling out how such a force could be trained, armed and ferried into action while South Vietnam is strained to build up military strength against enemy troops on its home grounds.

Linh said the army would be made up of Vietnamese who are "sick and tired of those people who want to 'liberate' South Vietnam." He referred to the Viet Cong and their North Vietnamese allies.

Much of the South Vietnamese military leadership, including President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, is on record in favor of escalation of the war against the North.

The Saigon newspaper Tien Tuyen, known as the voice of the South Vietnamese army, called March 1 for a landing of troops in North Vietnam. It also urged increased bombing operations, including attacks on the Red River dikes that could flood heartland territory between Hanoi and Haiphong.

"We suffer from devastation and deaths caused by the war, but we would suffer much more if such a plight were forced upon us indefinitely," Tien Tuyen said in an editorial passed by government censors. "We must gather strength to do this abscise."

Shortly before Linh made his announcement, the government's Vietnam Press came out with a story quoting authoritative sources as saying a "high-ranking member of the vice president's office is forming a March to the North Army."

Vice President Ky is the former commander of the South Vietnamese air force who was premier for two years before he and Thieu, a former general, were elected last fall to head the constitutional government.

"Many military men, political figures and representatives of groups and religions have been contacted for support of the formation of the army," Vietnam Press said.

"Moreover, several retired general officers, of high reputation and with the best military records, are actively participating in the formation of the March to the North Army's command staff."

Allies Wage Campaign In Mekong Delta Area

SAIGON (AP) — While battle action in the northern provinces held prime attention, a U.S.-Vietnamese task force has waged an unheralded campaign for a week against guerrillas in a Mekong Delta area centered 45 miles southwest of Saigon.

The U.S. Command announced Wednesday elements of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division and the South Vietnamese 7th Division have killed 139 of the enemy and detained 80 suspects in the operation since March 7.

Spokesmen said 18 of the Americans had been killed. Losses among the government troops were described as light.

It is from guerrilla bands in the delta, home to about a third of South Vietnam's 17 million people, that the enemy high command would expect to obtain many troops for any new drive on Saigon.

Briefing officers said U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops killed 400 of the enemy in five clashes Monday and Tuesday in coastal areas of the five northern provinces that make up the critical 1st Corps area. Incomplete casualty reports listed 11 Americans and 39 South Vietnamese killed.

U.S. Army helicopter gunship crews reported they sank 21 sampans carrying Viet Cong supplies near Hoi An, a few miles below the demilitarized zone.

The 14th anniversary of the start of the siege of Dien Bien Phu by Ho Chi Minh's forces March 13, 1954, apparently passed without any special action from the North Vietnamese who have besieged the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh for 53 days.

The U.S. Command said it had no word on the situation there Wednesday. There was no indication from newsmen at Khe Sanh of any unusual activity.

3 Hijackers Identified, Charged with Conspiracy

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Three men who stayed in Havana after flying there on a passenger jet hijacked over Florida were charged Wednesday with conspiracy to commit piracy.

Asst. U.S. Attorney Robert McGowan said the two men who threatened crew members with guns also had been charged with kidnapping the other 56 persons aboard National Airlines Flight 28.

McGowan said the warrants were issued by U.S. Commissioner Paul Game Jr. in Tampa, the city from which the plane had just taken off on the last leg of a San Francisco-Miami flight when it was hijacked. Piracy of an airliner is a death penalty offense.

In Miami, federal and airline officials agreed to seek ways to stop the growing number of hijackings. Three planes have been diverted to Cuba in three weeks.

The oldest man of the trio charged Wednesday, identified as Ramon Donate, 45, sat calmly in his coach seat during the flight but went into a tantrum of fear at Havana Airport. He told a stewardess and other passengers he would be killed in Cuba and indicated he was being kidnapped.

"It didn't appear from the investigation that he took part," McGowan said of the older man. "He didn't brandish a weapon or force the detour of the plane or hold the other people captive."

The two gunmen were identified in the charges as Jesus Armenteros, 38, and Gilberto Carranzana, 33.

The three were met at Jose Marti Airport in Havana by Jose Abrantes, Cuban vice minister in charge of security. They

Kennedy Considers Challenging LBJ For Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D.N.Y., indicated Wednesday he is considering a possible challenge to President Johnson for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Kennedy said results of the New Hampshire primary had removed "the major obstacles" to his running against Johnson.

He met in private for 20 minutes with antiwar candidate Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., who drew 42 per cent of the Democratic vote compared to Johnson's 48 per cent in New Hampshire Tuesday.

Kennedy told the Washington Post that if he decided to run he would probably have to campaign actively in the nation's primaries.

"Otherwise, there is no reason why anyone would consider me," he said.

McCarthy said Kennedy had "never really said he was taking himself out, and I have no reason to expect him to stay out."

McCarthy also reported: "He (Kennedy) just said what he had said this morning, that he was reassessing his position. He said he had reached no conclusions, that he just wanted to let me know. He didn't ask me for any commitments. He didn't give me any."

The Post quoted Kennedy as saying McCarthy would "continue in the race, as I expected and as is proper."

Kennedy had said two months ago he would not oppose the President "under any foreseeable circumstances."

But he announced to newsmen Wednesday, "I am reassessing my position as to whether I'll run against President Johnson."

The younger brother of Johnson's predecessor flew to New York Wednesday night for another meeting with political advisers. He said it was too early to make a decision on entering primaries in Oregon and California.

Kennedy said the major obstacle to his entry into the race had been the possibility people might suspect him of running because of personal ambition or personal animosity toward Johnson and this would deeply divide the Democratic party.

But he said the New Hampshire showing by McCarthy "clearly indicates that a sizeable group of Democrats are concerned about the direction in which the country is going, in the fields of both foreign and domestic policy.

He said McCarthy's campaign, based on issues arising from U.S. policy in Vietnam, had removed the personal element from a challenge to the President.

The meeting between Kennedy and McCarthy took place in the office of Robert Kennedy's brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Nixon Maintains Pledge: 'End War, Win Peace'

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon says his presidential campaign statement, "We will end the war in Vietnam and win the peace in the Pacific," constitutes a pledge.

"The next president of the United States must end the war," Nixon said, emphasizing the "must."

The former vice president, victorious in the New Hampshire primary and now set to intensify his drive in Wisconsin, said his statement about ending the war is not a vague campaign promise.

"It's a pledge," he said.

He added that he has "no magic formula" or a "gimmick."

"If I had a gimmick," Nixon said, "I would tell Lyndon Johnson. That would be a moral obligation."

"But I do have some specific ideas on how to end the war. They are primarily in the diplomatic area."

He indicated that he would spell out these thoughts when or if he wins the Republican nomination for president, but not in the campaigns in the primaries.

"I'm reserving my big guns for use against Johnson," Nixon said. "I have to adapt my strategy so as to win the primaries with the least expenditure of ammunition."

He said that he has his own private channels of information on the status of military and political events in Vietnam. He added that he does not receive briefings from the Central Intelligence Agency.

"But I have been to Vietnam so often that I do have sources there," he said. "I can't disclose them, of course. I expect to have even better sources."

Nixon made the statements in an interview in his Fifth Avenue apartment in New York. The election returns, foreshadowing his strong showing in New Hampshire, were coming in.

Relaxed, he wore a silk-trimmed smoking jacket, put his feet on a taboret and sipped coffee. An aide, Dwight Chapin, came in with a fresh report from New Hampshire.

"I see we're only running two to one over Rockefeller in the first precinct," Nixon said. "That's not good enough."

London's Gold Restrictions Do Little to Ease Panic

LONDON (AP) — London bullion dealers clamped sharp restrictions on sales Wednesday as Europe's gold buying rush neared panic proportions.

The dealers' efforts to slow the gold rush and give them time to catch up on what was described as a vast backlog of orders did not appear wholly successful.

Demand in all European bullion markets continued at a stampede level throughout the day. Speculators and hoarders snatched up the metal at almost any price in the drive to get out of paper money.

Paris silver dealers refused to quote a price for that metal in a move similar to that of London gold dealers. The Paris price for silver had already soared 20 points by then.

In London, gold dealers added a full five cents onto the price at Wednesday morning's fixing, making it $35.20 an ounce, and still the demand continued. They refused to accept new requests for small orders but continued selling large amounts to regular customers.

Spokesmen emphasized the move was not a suspension of sales.

"We are applying a brake, so to speak," said one.

This was the first time such restrictions had been applied in London since formation of the international gold pool in London in 1960 to stabilize the market. Members are the United States, Britain, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

The action followed a spate of reports from Zurich, denied in both Rome and Washington, which claimed:

— That Italy had made a secret deal with the United States which in effect would permit the Italians to drop out of the seven-nation gold pool.

— That Washington was preparing to slap an embargo on further sales of gold.

As a hedge, Swiss bankers would only agree to new sales on the understanding that buyers would have to pay any higher free market rate which might result by delivery dates from an American embargo.

Meanwhile, gold dealers and the man in the street alike were asking: what next?

The rush to gold and away from paper currencies began last November when Britain devalued the pound from $2.80 to $2.40. The rush to convert pounds, dollars and other paper currencies recently took on new momentum.

The current speculators and hoarders seem to have concentrated on the United States.

To many, it appeared like a nerve-rattling war of attrition between the speculators intent on snapping up all the gold possible with whatever cash they can borrow.

Student Demonstrations Spread Through Poland

WARSAW (AP) — Antigovernment student demonstrators spread from the capital to eight Polish cities Wednesday with police in Poznan, the steel city that rioted in 1956, reportedly flailing at several thousand marchers with clubs.

In Cracow, authorities were also said to have used force in dispersing a parade of some 3,000 marchers at Jagiellonian University, Poland's oldest institution for higher education.

Informants told of other demonstrations in Gdansk (formerly Danzig), Lublin, Wroclaw (formerly Breslau), Lodz and Szczecin (formerly Stettin). Their aim was to express solidarity with students at the University of Warsaw who fought police for three days during demonstrations against the closing of a popular play that might prove embarrassing to the Russians.

Reliable sources said the police in Poznan waded into lines of students chanting "the press lies" and burning copies of state-controlled newspapers in front of a statue of Adam Mickiewicz, the 19th century Polish poet whose play "Dziady" was ordered off the stage in January.

Poznan was the scene in June 1956 of a two-day uprising by workers demanding "bread and freedom." Troops killed 44 and imprisoned more than 1,000 persons in putting down the riots, but they prodded the government into some reforms.

Warsaw was calm in bright sunshine, but police patrolled the university district in threes. Plywood boards were placed over the glass facade of a movie house that had been smashed in the fighting.

The students charge that "the press lies" seemed to be directed at the government's attempt to blame the unrest on hooligans and "Zionists." This line was stressed again Wednesday.

Highway Office Will Not Move To Meadville

FRANKLIN—A rumor circulating in and around the area that Gov. Raymond Shafer was making plans to move the Pennsylvania District Highways office to his home town of Meadville has been denied by State Sen. Richard C. Frame.

Frame said he knew of no plans of moving the highway office from Franklin.

He went on to say that due to crowded conditions in the present building there are two sites now under study as possible new locations for the highways office. He added that both sites are in the Franklin area.

According to Frame talk centers around a new building but it would be several years, possibly five, before it comes about.

A spokesman for the highways office said there are 581 persons employed through the district office which covers seven counties: Venango, Warren, Crawford, Erie, Mercer, Forest and Lawrence.

He stated the annual payroll for the entire district is $3,496,766. It was pointed out that approximately one-third or well over a million of the total payroll is paid out each year to persons working in the Franklin district office.

No Net Change In County Employment

There was no net change in Warren County employment figures during the past 60 days, Andrew Donick, local State Employment Service manager, reported Wednesday.

Over the past 12 months, growth by nonmanufacturing firms nearly offset decreases in shop jobs. Between February 1967 and 1968, losses were noted in primary metals and fabricated metals and other non-durable goods; meanwhile, gains were made by whole sale and retail trade, service and miscellaneous business, and government. The continued advance by non-factory lines conformed to the national pattern.

There are now 475 persons registered for work at the local employment service office; the corresponding figure for two months ago was 460. Employers are currently looking for general office clerks, stenographers, and sales clerks.

Festival of Purim Celebrated Here

Warren's Jewish community at sundown Wednesday ushered in the Festival of Purim.

The festival, also known as the "Feast of Lots," is celebrated by Jews throughout the world and continues through today (Thursday).

House Agrees to $500 Hike For Public School Teachers

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House approved a salary increase for Pennsylvania's public school teachers Wednesday night, after the Republican leadership agreed to demands for consideration of aid to non-public schools at a later date.

By a vote of 173-15, the House sent to the Senate a 3-day-old measure that would give teachers a $500 across-the-board raise and boost their minimum starting salary from $4,500 to $5,000 over the next two years.

Minority Democrats, charging that the Republicans were acting with undue haste, repeatedly made attempts to amend the legislation and delay its passage. In the end, all but 10 Democrats and five Republicans voted for the bill.

The Republican proposal, which has not been endorsed by Gov. Shafer, would provide the state's 103,000 teachers and school supervisory personnel with at least $500 more in the 1968-69 school year, plus any $300 increments due them.

In addition, it would raise the statewide minimum starting salary from $4,500 to $5,400 in 1968-69 and to $6,000 in 1969-70. An estimated 85 per cent of the state's school districts currently pay more than the mandated minimum.

The bill, introduced in a surprise move by Republicans on Monday, sailed through the House in the minimum three days required for consideration. Soundings from the Senate, however, indicated that more study would be given to the measure.

The Pennsylvania State Education Association, which led 20,000 teachers in a march on the Capitol March 4, said the legislation was not satisfactory in its present form.

However, Joseph Standa, PSEA president from Johnstown, told newsmen he hoped the Senate would amend the measure to provide further increments for teachers with long service and post-graduate study credits.

Democrats offered three amendments to the bill, including one that would establish a system of state aid to non-public schools at an annual cost of $25.4 million. The amendment was similar to one defeated Tuesday.

However, Rep. Martin P. Mullen, D-Philadelphia, the leading proponent for such aid, said he had picked up votes overnight from the Republican side of the aisle.

Acting quickly, House Republican Leader Lee A. Donaldson promised GOP members ready to vote for Mullen's amendment that a nonpublic school aid bill would be released from the Appropriations Committee immediately following passage of the salary bill.

Mullen, incensed by Donaldson's action, called it a "cheap political trick" and said he wanted "money for nonpublic schools now." His amendment failed, however, 80-107.

A nonpublic school aid bill, sponsored by six Philadelphia Republicans, was released by the Appropriations Committee, and Donaldson said the committee, along with Fox's Basic Education Committee, would hold hearings on the proposal.

Area Plant Burns

A flash fire triggered by an explosion raced quickly Tuesday through a Clarion area plant, leveling it to the ground. Damages were expected to reach $250,000. The blaze, described as one of the worst in the area in years, wiped out the Hospital Supply Development Co. (Larjan), located just west of Clarion at Marianne. The business had recently been purchased by the Philip Morris Co., and every effort is being made for the refinancing and rebuilding of the plant.

Red Cross Frustrated In Effort for Prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Red Cross authorities have been meeting with representatives of the Viet Cong in Communist Czechoslovakia in so far as frustrated efforts to get food packages and mail to U.S. prisoners.

The Red Cross also has sent cable after cable to Hanoi in hopes of arranging some regular channel of contact with U.S. POWs in North Vietnam, sources said.

"So far we've had absolutely no encouragement either from the VC or the North Vietnamese," one American Red Cross official said.

He disclosed that a representative of the American Red Cross meets a Viet Cong representative in Prague every other month or so. "We've tried time and time again," he said. The VC and the North Vietnamese also are spurning efforts by the International Red Cross, officials reported.

The intransigence of the Communist Vietnamese is puzzling to American Red Cross authorities in view of a totally different attitude on the part of the Chinese Communists, also bitter enemies of the United States.

For the past 13 years, officials said, the Communist Chinese have never failed to carry out a monthly arrangement whereby a letter and two packages of food, each weighing 11 pounds, are provided for five Americans in Chinese captivity.

Mail getting out of mainland China to families of the prisoners indicates they are getting the mail and packages with the contents undisturbed, it was said.

Four of the five are American civilians who have been held in Chinese jails on espionage charges for nearly 20 years. They are Father John J. Walsh, a Maryland priest from Ossining, N.Y.; Richard G. Fecteau of Lynn, Mass.; Hugh Redmond, Yonkers, N.Y., and John Downey of New Britain, Conn.

The fifth is Air Force Cadet Capt. Philip E. Smith of Victorville, Calif., who was taken prisoner after his plane was shot down over the South China Sea in September 1955.

Except for an exchange of mail three years ago, the American Red Cross has been turned back in all its tries—through a variety of possible channels—to get the Viet Cong to agree to accept packages for POWs.

The latest Pentagon listing carries 240 Americans captured or interned and 897 missing. The great bulk are captured fliers downed in air attacks against the North.

McKean County Millage Rates Upped to 16

SMETHPORT — The tentative budget for McKean County for the current year totals $1,344,000, an increase over last year's of $215,000 in expenditures. The million dollar plus budget will result in increased taxes to all residents of the county.

Millage rates will be upped from 13 mills to 16 mills and the per capita will be increased from $2 to $3 this year. Real estate is taxed on 25 per cent of real value in the county.

According to the county commissioners, the increase in expenditures this year resulted from salary adjustments, some mandated by the state, along with contributions approved by the commissioners including an appropriation to Bradford Regional Airport and other increases in costs for services provided beyond the control of the commissioners.

Clark Calls Further Increase In Viet Troops 'Futile Effort'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Further increases in the number of American troops in Vietnam would be "a futile effort to outman the endless manpower of Southeast Asia," Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., said Wednesday.

Such a move, he said, would be tantamount to a national disaster. Clark, a critic of the administration's handling of the war for some time, said he remains confident that President Johnson wants to end the war "and get us out."

He again urged a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam and a cease fire in the South.

He described such a cease fire as a calculated risk the United States should take in an effort to bring about an honorable settlement of the war.

Clark's comments were recorded for the Columbia Broadcasting System radio program "Capitol Classroom."

Clark, a candidate for reelection, said a poll taken for him before the start of the recent Communist offensive showed Pennsylvanians to be badly split in their opinions on the war.

Now, he said, he sees "a shift in sentiment toward an honorable and negotiated settlement" and less emphasis on obtaining a military victory.

Questioned regarding Tuesday's President Primary in New Hampshire and the strong showing of Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., Clark said he does not believe the primary left his party "in any more disarray than before."

He called the race "a healthy thing for my party."

Bakers Accused Of Fixing Bread Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven baking companies, including several of the nation's largest, were charged by a federal grand jury Wednesday with illegally conspiring to fix bread prices.

The Justice Department said the seven companies and eight of their officials were charged by a federal grand jury in Philadelphia with violating the Sherman Antitrust Act. The department said the criminal action was accompanied by a companion civil antitrust suit which named only the company as defendants.

The indictment said the companies and the officials conspired to fix bread prices in Philadelphia, its neighboring counties, southern New Jersey and northern Delaware since January 1964.

The result, the government said, prevented consumers from buying bread at competitive prices.

Named as defendants were: General Host Corp., formerly the General Baking Co., of New York City, its president, James T. Scott, and the regional manager of its Bond Baking Co. Division, Oscar Clouser;

Continental Baking Co., of Rye, N.Y., its regional vice president, Earl E. Campbell, and a former manager of its Norristown, Pa., plant, Julius Heim;

William Freihofer Baking Co., of Allentown, Pa., and its president, W. R. Schilling;

Huber Baking Co., Inc., Wilmington, Del., and its president, George F. Huber Jr.;

Schalbe's Bakery of Easton, Pa., and its vice president, Harry B. Konn;

Stroehmann Brothers Co., of Williamsport, Pa., and the manager of its Norristown plant, Leo M. Roussel;

Ward Foods, Inc., formerly Ward Baking Co., of New York City.

If convicted, each corporate defendant could be fined up to $50,000 and each individual could be sentenced to one year in prison and fined $50,000.

The civil suit seeks to stop the allegedly illegal price fixing, to prevent each corporation from communicating price information to any other, and to order each company to set its prices independently.

The government said bread sales by the seven companies in the area listed in the indictment totaled about $40 million a year.

Majority Favor Troop Withdrawal

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A majority of persons surveyed throughout this country favor a gradual withdrawal of American troops in South Vietnam, the Gallup Poll stated Wednesday.

A total of 69 per cent of 1,504 persons interviewed approved of a plan to draft and train South Vietnamese not now in the armed services.

When a similar plan was first submitted to the public in December, 1966, 58 per cent expressed approval.

Under the plan, each group of 100,000 South Vietnamese would be trained for combat duty would replace a similar number of American troops until a phase-out of U.S. armed forces was completed.

FEEDING FEATHERED FRIENDS

Bird feeders abound in Warren County as most Warren people like to provide for the wild birds during the cold winter days. In New York City it's the pigeons that appeal for a handout all year long.

Taking pity on the pigeons that must face the raw weather without an overcoat, the Dr. Dolittle of Madison Square Park braves snow, sleet and chilling winds to feed them.

Illegitimate Births in U.S. Are Steadily Increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government survey reports a virtually steady increase in illegitimate births in the United States since 1940, with the latest available estimate being 291,000 for 1965 alone.

Pennsylvania Happenings

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A courtroom is always a battleground — and a new, interesting book, "Trials of a Philadelphia Lawyer," proves it's also filled with big chunks of hate, lies, humor and mystery.

Laurence H. Eldredge, a Philadelphia lawyer, tells a fascinating story of some of the untypical trials in his legal life. He's frank in admitting "I am not one of those lawyers who have never lost a case or made a mistake or given bad advice. I have done all of those things."

And it is his honesty that adds charm to his readable accounts of a dozen unusual cases, some of which he did lose during his 40 years of legal practice.

Right at the start he sets the tone with his personal philosophy: "I love to teach in the classroom and watch brilliant young legal minds begin to grow and develop. I love to sit quietly in my office and listen to the problems of a client. . . . A lawyer in general practice never knows when he goes to his office in the morning what may happen to him or what he may hear before the day is over."

At the end he reflects on today's men, laws and government and insists "that no right is absolute," including free speech and so-called peaceful picketing.

Eldredge — who's held law professorships at Penn, Temple and Columbia — tells about "the case of a dog that shot his master," how he was sued by a justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court for refusing to print his dissenting opinion, why a client must tell his lawyer the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and how a patient collected damages because of a doctor's negligence even though he couldn't prove the charge in court.

"Trials of a Philadelphia Lawyer" is the first book published under the editorship of the Philadelphia Bulletin, largest afternoon newspaper in Pennsylvania. The next is due later this summer.

WAS IT NERVE? Frank Ryan, a 22-year-old Philadelphia, recently was charged with illegal gambling activities in a police station. "Boy," said Magistrate Benjamin Segal who set bail at $300, "you've got a lot of nerve to take number bets in a police station." Ryan just shrugged his shoulders.

Do men like women? Absolutely. But an alleged expert on the subject — a woman — thinks men like women for mostly the wrong reasons.

Mrs. Eunice Clarke, assistant director of Temple University's Center for Community Studies, insists men "place a higher value on a woman's sex appeal than on her brains."

Any rebuttals? — write Mrs. Clarke, please!

But it says the rate of increase has slowed down considerably since 1957, especially among the nonwhite population — with the latter even showing a slight declining rate since 1960.

The survey was conducted by the U.S. Public Health Service's national center for health statistics and covered the years 1940-1965.

"Although it is commonly believed that teen-agers have the greatest risk of bearing an illegitimate child (since) over 40 per cent of the illegitimate children are born to mothers 15-19 years of age . . . these women actually have the lowest illegitimacy rates among women under 35 years of age," the report said.

"In general, the illegitimacy rates for women 25 years of age and over have increased more rapidly than those for younger women during the period 1940-65."

The illegitimacy rate is the number of illegitimate births per 1,000 unmarried women aged 15 to 44.

The report contains projected estimates for the nation based on information obtained from birth certificates in the 34 states and District of Columbia where a statement of legitimacy status is required on the birth certificate.

Copper Strike Talks End In Another Stalemate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another contract proposal fell through Wednesday in White House efforts to settle the nation's eight-month-old copper industry strike. And both company and union sources reported talks back in a stalemate.

"Refusal of the coalition of 25 striking unions to finalize an agreement with Kennecott Copper Corp.'s Western mining operations until a settlement is reached for the company's lead-zinc and fabricating operations has once again resulted in a complete deadlock," a Kennecott spokesman said.

Earlier a proposed Phelps Dodge Corp. offer of $1.07 per hour in increases for a 40-month contract collapsed when federal negotiators tried to compromise union demands to apply it to other company operations.

The Phelps Dodge offer also applied only to its Western mining operations, plus its El Paso refinery.

Talks with the other two major copper firms, Anaconda Co. and American Smelting and Refining Co., continued but with no report of progress.

More than 50,000 workers are involved in the strike that has shut down most U.S. copper production.

Both company and union negotiators appeared to be waiting for some further move by federal officials to try to get negotiations going again.

The talks have been stymied from the start over union demands for company-wide bargaining, similar wage and fringe benefit increases for all workers of each company, and simultaneous contract expiration dates at all mines and factories of each firm.

Not Too Soon to Learn

At a time when men are learning to fly to the moon, tour the world in supersonic jets, and beam television waves from one side of the earth to the other it is amazing that we have not been able to cope with the problems we ourselves have created here on earth.

We are wasting the resources of the only world in which we will ever live (perhaps), defiling our environment, and showing disrespect for the cycles of nature. In general, we are making a mess of things and don't seem to even realize it.

We must "Learn to Live With Nature" as this year's theme of approaching Wildlife Week suggests. Concentrate on understanding the ways to protect the ecology so important to man's enjoyment of life and the beauty of our nation. Conservation education holds the answer. We must teach people to care for the land, protect wildlife, stop poisoning our streams and fouling the air we breathe. We must also teach people to take notice of what others are doing to the environment--the polluters, litter bugs, can and bottle tossers, and junkyard owners.

Present conditions indicate that this is a vital form of needed education. And while it is not too late to educate the present generation, it is an absolute necessity that the upcoming generation be better informed than their parents were. Every school should have a complete conservation education program so that our children will learn to live with nature--not in spite of it.

National Wildlife Week is a good time to start these educational programs. Today is not too soon--tomorrow may be too late.

Viet Reappraisal in Cabinet

WASHINGTON — The big debate on Vietnam in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is now over, and one thing seems fairly clear. The Vietnam conflict within the committee and between the committee and the Johnson administration is not likely to be solved, no matter how much they consult one another. The issue of American policy on the war is going to have to be resolved by the people in the presidential election of 1968.

Actually, two of the major controversies in the Senate debate — would the President seek the advice of congressional leaders "before" he decided whether to send a great many more troops to Vietnam, and would he agree to a major reappraisal of his policy in Vietnam — have already been resolved.

It can be said on the highest authority that the President will consult the congressional leaders before he decides the troop question, and that a serious reappraisal of Vietnam policy has already started.

Ironically, one of the key figures in this decision to reappraise the whole policy and consult the Congress before deciding what to do is the man who was supposed to be the most devoted advocate of the old policy: the new secretary of defense, Clark Clifford, Vice President Hubert Humphrey is also questioning all the assumptions of the past. Both have been around here just long enough to ask for the political, economic and financial implications of Gen. William Westmoreland's request for an additional 206,000 men for Vietnam — and these are now being gone into.

Secretary Rusk was a brilliant advocate of the administration's propaganda line. His argument to the Foreign Relations Committee was that Vietnam was "vital" to the security of the United States. More than that it was essential, he said, to the integrity of the United States, and therefore we must keep going, no matter what the cost in blood and money, until the enemy stops his aggression. It was an effective theme against a divided committee, especially because even those who disagree with the Secretary of State's policy, admire his skill and character. But behind his argument that we must face up to the problem of Communist aggression regardless of the cost, the plain fact is that his own colleagues in the cabinet, and even his superiors in the White House, are calculating the cost and wondering, almost for the first time, whether the goal is worth the cost.

Secretary Rusk told the Foreign Relations Committee that the administration was reappraising its policy "from A to Z," and this is true. The administration is not only looking at Rusk's goals, with which it agrees, but at what these goals would mean to the budget, the balance of payments, the problem of the cities of America, and the electoral votes in the presidential election.

And when you talk to Rusk's colleagues in the cabinet after hearing his testimony before the Foreign Relations Committee, the policy question about what to do in Vietnam seems a little more complicated. The administration is in deep trouble now. It does not have the resources of men and money to meet the objectives it has proclaimed for Vietnam abroad and the cities at home. It has not been able to convince the country that its war in Vietnam is going as well as it says or that this war is essential to the security of the nation. In short, it is trapped by its own propaganda, and this was true of almost everybody in the Senate debate this week.

Chairman Fulbright picked up no votes in the debate. Even the senators who supported the administration kept urging Secretary Rusk to explain his policy so that the American people could understand what the administration was trying to do in Vietnam, but in the end the debate was a standoff, and that is where it is likely to remain.

For while Humphrey, Clifford and other members of the cabinet are urging a serious reappraisal of Vietnam policy, and while this reappraisal is actually taking place, almost all of the principal characters are trapped in the past. The division in the Senate and the country is paralyzing the administration. It is not willing to decide for a major new effort for peace or a major new effort to win a military victory, so the old debate and the old policy are likely to go on about as before.

In this situation, the question of Vietnam is probably going to have to go to the jury of the people in the presidential election. It was an accident that the Rusk-Fulbright debate on Vietnam in the Senate caucus room ended when the presidential elections began in New Hampshire, but it may be significant. Unless there is a major change on the battlefield, the chances are that American Vietnam policy will have to be decided at the polls next November.

The Rhodesian Fiasco

You would think that the Rhodesians had just finished executing Florence Nightingale, her mother, and her father. The reaction to the executions is one of the strangest phenomena of our insatiable age. Consider.

1. India is furious. India is taking the position that the Queen's word must be final in these matters. Herewith a show of homeguardism quite extraordinary under the circumstances, the circumstances.

2. Kenya is furious. Kenya has just finished, as we have seen, making its Indian-descended citizens officially second-class, which of course makes it imperative to side noisily with anyone who criticizes a government which has done the same thing, only to black Africans.

3. U Thant is furious. Why? Isn't U Thant committed, above all other things, to anti-colonialism? Why should U Thant yap about the authority of the Crown in remote territories, it being his explicit concern to undermine that authority wherever it emerges? When last heard from, the United Nations was brooding over such colonialism as is exercised by the United States over Puerto Rico. Surely U Thant would be more consistent to have objected to England's officious intervention in the purely internal affairs of a country which was self-governing twenty years before the United Nations was a gleam in the busybodies' eye?

4. The United States is furious. The State Department has announced that the execution, "we fear, drastically reduces the possibility of a negotiated settlement of the Rhodesian situation in accordance with the six principles put forward by the British government." Quite right. But then why isn't the United States sore at England, rather than at Rhodesia? It is England, not Rhodesia, that promulgated this crisis. As a matter of psychological fact, nothing could more surely have guaranteed that the execution would take place than the granting of a reprieve by the Queen, the sole purpose of which was manifestly political, and everywhere obvious, namely to challenge once again the legitimacy of Rhodesia's separation in 1965 from the commonwealth. And then again, why is it the business of the United States to comment on such internal squabbles as Rhodesia's with England? Would we welcome pronouncements by Harold Wilson on our arrangements with the Virgin Islands?

5. And then England is furious. That one is my absolute favorite. "There were demands in the House today," reads the dispatch in the New York Times, "for prosecution of the Rhodesians if they can ever be brought before a British court. One Labor member, Andrew Faulds, even said 'the death penalty' should not be excluded." The sun has surely set on British reason. Concerning the humane argument, it should be noted that England was hanging its criminals as a matter of course until quite recently, and has no right to expect that other countries should necessarily follow England's lead in the matter of abolition. This is an important point to bear in mind, namely that the Queen's reprieve is justified purely on the grounds of the categorical commitment that England now has against the institution of capital punishment. Concerning the guilt of the three men, no one raised a question, not even Mark Lane. Canada retains capital punishment. Would an English government dare to prop up the Queen into calling off an execution in, say, Montreal?

No, what has happened is a pure venture in cynicism, the bloodier for having used three wretched murderers as the pawns. What emerges from it all is the infantile barbarism of the oldest parliamentary governing in the world, England's. The leverage England might have had on Rhodesia by which to leave Rhodesia's policies is now lost, and the three men have been hanged; a typical accomplishment of the Wilson Administration.

An aide rushed in. "Bobby has just gone out to visit the sharecroppers in California." The chief lit a new cigar. "It could be a diversionary tactic. We better go on red alert. If it's just a scare, it will be a good exercise for the troops; but if it's the real thing, we could make the front page of Women's Wear Daily."

DREW PEARSON

Military Takeover of Policy

WASHINGTON — Before the Senate votes money for 200,000 more U. S. troops to Vietnam, it should take a careful look at two things:

1 — The slip-and-slide manner in which we have become involved in a major war without the consent of Congress.

2 — The manner in which the American military more and more are shaping, now almost directing, foreign policy.

The trend toward military dictation of foreign policy has been developing for some time, but has reached a peak under Lyndon Johnson. Today there are only three civilian advisers whom he consults — Secretary of State Rusk, who has become so entrenched regarding Vietnam that he has lost his perspective; Walt Rostow, who was responsible for our original involvement in Vietnam under Kennedy and now wants to justify his mistake; and the new Secretary of Defense, Clark Clifford, who has kept his perspective.

These three lunch with the President once a week. Secretary of Defense McNamara, now retired, is reported to have had a feeling of remorse that he was partly responsible for leading the country deeper and deeper into war. Clifford, who has taken his place, is a tough, shrewd observer and not as much of a hawk as originally reported. It now develops that he was against the bombing of North Vietnam on the fatal night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the Johnson administration took its biggest escalation step. He felt the decision was a serious error.

It was the military who persuaded the President to take this step. Acting Secretary of State George Ball vigorously opposed the escalation. Ball argued that Premier Kosygin, who had been in office only four months, had arrived in Hanoi only the day before, and to bomb at that time looked like a deliberate slap at him. Later it developed that Kosygin had been on a mission to persuade the North Vietnamese to talk peace. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have been the guiding factor in setting American policy in Vietnam ever since. Simultaneously the war has been going from bad to worse.

The encroachment of the American military on foreign policy under Johnson is not entirely new. To some extent it began under Franklin Roosevelt, who gave the Navy a much bigger role than the Army. Roosevelt had served as Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Wilson, and resented the manner in which the Republicans under Coolidge and Hoover had scrapped battleships and curtailed cruisers. FDR rebuilt the Navy at a tremendous speed, but never let the admirals or the generals run World War II.

Harry Truman, a veteran of Battery D in the old Missouri National Guard, reversed this, gave more power to the Army. His close friend and military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan, was a staunch Army man, and on occasion helped siphon arms to Latin American nations despite the opposition of the State Department. Truman, however, never let the Army get out of hand, and fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he stepped over the line.

Significantly it was a military President, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who curbed the Army more than any other recent President. The generals used to complain that Ike cut the military budget more than any civilian President. Ike understood army politics, and was tough with his old buddies when they tried to lobby on Capitol Hill. He also warned, as he left office, of the danger of an alliance between the defense contractors and the military.

Kennedy returned the military to a position of power, emphasizing a 50-year fact that the military have always prospered under Democratic Presidents.

However, no Democrat has given the military so much scope as Lyndon Johnson. Lyndon's kowtowing to the brass began when he was a young lieutenant commander in the South Pacific in World War II. Later he served on the House Naval Affairs Committee, then as chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee.

As such, he teamed up with the generals and admirals to blast Eisenhower for the missile gap. As Senate Majority Leader he was in a potent position to give the military the appropriations they wanted, and he did. The generals and admirals, in return, put more military bases in Texas than in any other state in the Union. If the civilians, who were supposed to run the military under Ike, tried to economize on a base in Texas, they heard from Lyndon in no uncertain terms. And the military always rushed to his defense. Texas bases, no matter how outmoded, were not curtailed or transferred out of the state.

This alliance between LBJ and the brass has continued as the onetime Senator from Texas has moved into the White House.

The President's latest romance has been with Gen. William Westmoreland, who was caught napping during the Tet lunar holiday in a manner almost as serious as Admiral H. E. Kimmel and Gen. Walter Short were caught napping at Pearl Harbor. They were removed from command and disciplined.

Gen. Westmoreland, instead of being removed, has asked for and will probably get 200,000 more troops. Significantly, the oldest friend the President has on Capitol Hill had been publicly critical of Westmoreland. When LBJ, a very young Senator from Texas, aspired to be Senate Majority Leader in 1953, it was Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, Southern elder statesman, who got on the long distance telephone to absent Senators, then not in session, and rounded up the votes.

Today, Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has joined the public critics of Gen. Westmoreland. But his old friend, now in the White House, seems mesmerized as far as military mistakes are concerned.

MASON DENISON

'Uncommitted and Unified'

HARRISBURG — Governor Shafer may be running into more trouble than he bargained for in trying to keep Pennsylvania's 64 delegates in line because somewhat of an enigma, and perhaps a frustration point for his Excellency.

At the moment it is generally felt that Mr. Shafer personally would line up with the Rockefeller forces, although obviously the Governor if he hopes to maintain anything resembling an "uncommitted" status, is not in position to publicly announce support of any candidate.

If he does, he immediately loses his favorite son status. On the other hand there are too many factors to indicate otherwise in the Governor's thinking—which presents somewhat of a problem of delegation posture inasmuch as there are a number of delegates-to-be who are known quite definitely to be in the Nixon camp.

Insofar as the pro-Rockefeller faction is concerned however, it should be remembered that one of the prime movers of the Rockefeller candidacy has been Pennsylvania's U.S. Senator Hugh Scott, one-time National GOP Chairman and a recognized strategist of no small import—both nationally and within the state.

Senator Scott was one of the prime movers behind the candidacy of William Warren Scranton in 1962, which subsequently resulted in Mr. Scranton picking up his gubernatorial status.

The circumstance is similar in the case of Mr. Shafer. Suffice it to say Mr. Scott is not simply snoozing away the hours in his senatorial pew in Washington.

All of this does serve to bring into somewhat hazy focus the support Governor Rockefeller generally would be credited with having within the Pennsylvania delegate bloc.

On the other hand there are Nixon die-hards among the delegates—so die-hardish in fact they may well refuse to go along with any other candidate.

This then could leave Governor Shafer's "favorite son" candidacy in somewhat shattered and shaky posture—and a split over a "favorite son" candidacy is anything but productive of a handsome image!

Much can happen between now and August 5 when GOPsters gather along the Miami beaches to name their presidential hopeful—the outcome of which may have much to do in determining Mr. Shafer's leadership qualities, on the political front at least.

Other chief executives have used the favorite son strategy to extreme advantage; others have wound up an ignominious spectacle—both at home and on the convention floor.

SYLVIA PORTER

Your Retirement Income

Let's say you are now saving a proportion of your income that will give you, combined with your expected Social Security retirement benefits, a total retirement income roughly equal to your current annual earnings.

If you are doing this, and if so you are in the minority of America's informed, affluent and thrifty, the chances are overwhelming your actual retirement income will be only about 50 per cent of what other Americans will be earning by the time you retire.

This is a projection developed by two Duke University economists, Juanita M. Kreps and John O. Blackburn, for a recent hearing on retirement problems by the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Aging. It dramatizes how abysmally inadequate are today's actual retirement incomes; it also warns that tomorrow's retirement incomes will be even more inadequate in terms of tomorrow's living standards and living costs.

It's obvious right now. The typical income of a family headed by a person over age 65 is only 46 per cent of the median (middle, half above, half below) income of families headed by younger Americans. The median income for an elderly individual is a sub-poverty $1,443, or only 42 per cent of the median $3,443 for younger individuals.

And because the income of younger Americans has been rising twice as fast as that of elderly Americans, the gap is widening steadily.

What place does Social Security have? On average, benefits amount to about a third of retired Americans' income.

But this is an average: for many in their 70's and 80's, no longer able to supplement their benefits with part-time earnings, Social Security is the only source of income.

The problem didn't seem so awesome in previous generations when it was part of the American family tradition for the younger ones to take care of elderly members within the home and the parents died early anyway. But now that tradition has been broken—and life expectancy for a 65 year old man is another 13 years, while for his slightly younger wife it's nearly 20 years.

How do we handle it, then? What should we do as responsible participants in a civilized society? What can we do?

Let me admit right here I do NOT have the right answers. What I do have, though, and this alone is progress, are some of the right questions. Specifically:

How big a place should Social Security benefits play in a personal retirement program? Can individuals save anywhere near enough to supplement in a meaningful way the modest Social Security benefits we can look forward to?

Will rising pension benefits do anything more in the years ahead than offset probable rises in living costs? According to one recent projection, by 1980, half of retired couples will be receiving $3,000 or less in Social Security and private pension incomes, or far below 1960's poverty line.

Another fundamental question raised by economists Kreps and Blackburn is: should the worker who retires now reap retirement benefits based on the spectacular technological gains the nation has been making in recent years, while the worker who retired years ago and also contributed as much as he could to the nation's overall economic growth at that time, gets only a fraction in return for his comparable effort?

Whatever answers we come to eventually, and the questions surely underline the developing urgency of the challenge, will be costly. To paraphrase an old truism, there's no such thing as a free retirement.

Happenings Years Ago

A large plane carrying U.S. Senator Robert A. Taft on a campaign swing through Maine crashed on the ice-covered Kennebec river but the Republican presidential candidate escaped without injury.

According to the Sheffield Observer the seventh bottle making machine was placed in operation at the Pennsylvania Bottle Co. bringing the plant to capacity production for the first time since last November.

The 32nd anniversary banquet given by the Guglielmo Marconi Society at the local club rooms had as principal guests Father Edward Jacobs, Father Alfred Bauer and Father Arthur Leon, each of whom spoke briefly of the progress of the organization.

Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court said he personally ordered a Pittsburgh judge to ban picture-taking in his courtroom on the ground it was both "an improper and disruptive procedure."

Warren-Forest Girl Scout Council, holding its annual banquet to mark the founding of Girl Scouting in America, accorded its highest honor, its "Thanks Badge" to Mrs. Walter Mather in recognition of her untiring efforts in the movement. Armed with a new decree suspending civil liberties, President Fulgencio Batista's police and army stood ready to smash anti-government demonstrations if thousands of Havana university students go through with plans to hold a mass meeting today.

ART BUCHWALD

The Jackie-Watchers

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot written about the China-watchers, the Kremlin-watchers, those dedicated anonymous souls charged with following every movement and interpreting every event in the life of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Nobody knows how many Jackie-watchers there are, though the figure of "over 5,000" has been used time and time again.

By chance and good fortune I managed to get in the "Jackie room" of one of the largest newspaper wire services in the world. It was modeled after the Pentagon war room with a wall-to-wall relief map of the world at one end and a large balcony at the other end where the joint chief of Jackie-watchers and his staff could sit and follow Mrs. Kennedy's travels.

At the moment I arrived they were pushing a cut-out wooden model of Mrs. Kennedy along the map of Mexico toward Yucatan. A man with an earphone headset was dictating to the man working the map: "She's heading toward the ruins of Uxmal in Merida. Then she's going to the jungle of Palenque to visit the newly discovered Mayan ruins."

The joint chief was nervously smoking his cigar. "How many photographers do we have in the Yucatan?"

"One hundred and fifty," an aide said.

"We better send in another 75, to be on the safe side."

"But, chief," a lieutenant said, "that will leave us understaffed in case she decides to go to Mexico City."

"We can always send down the reserve photography unit from Los Angeles," the chief said. Just then a man rushed in with a cable. The lieutenant read it out loud. "Holy smokes! Lord Harlech has just left his home in Wales and is believed to be heading for London."

A wooden model of Lord Harlech was pushed slowly from Wales toward the British capital.

"What do you think it means?" the aide asked excitedly. The chief bit hard on his cigar. "Let's see. If she's going to visit the ruins at Merida in Mexico and he's on his way to London, it could mean he might be joining her here."

"In the Virgin Islands?"

"Why not? It could be their way of throwing us off. You better send 400 photographers and 200 reporters to the Caribbean just in case."

"Yes, sir."

The chief studied the map again. "Where are John John and Caroline?"

"They're still in New York at the apartment. They haven't moved in three days."

"Very suspicious," the chief said. "You better double the photographers at the apartment. Any word on Princess Radziwill?"

"A life reporter had her buying clothes at Givenchy yesterday."

JOSEPH ALSOP Rockefeller in the Race

WASHINGTON—After his New York meeting with a long list of Republican moderates on Sunday, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is near certain to enter the Oregon primary against former Vice President Richard M. Nixon. As one of the governors put the matter on Sunday:

"You may not win, but if you don't try, you cannot win."

The prospective active candidacy of Rockefeller is a Republican development far transcending in importance any other to date, of course, including the New Hampshire primary. Furthermore, it is clear that Rockefeller is taking a very considerable gamble, and not just because, or even mainly because, Nixon has been working so hard and long to secure delegate pledges.

The Rockefeller announcement will be deferred for a bit, because his decision is not yet absolutely final, and also because the governor wishes to stay out of Nebraska, and to challenge Nixon only in Oregon. And although Rockefeller will have vigorous support from Oregon's able governor, Tom McCall, even Oregon is not guaranteed plain sailing.

What is needed in Oregon is something more than topping Nixon in the polling. What is needed is a clear demonstration that the Republicans this year want a moderate candidate with a winning image. And besides Nixon, Rockefeller will also confront California Gov. Ronald Reagan, if and when he enters the Oregon contest.

A recent local poll gave 40 per cent of the Republican vote to Rockefeller, 36 per cent to Nixon and 10 per cent to Reagan, with the rest undecided. For the Oregon primary to have a major effect, the New York governor will have to wage a sufficiently successful campaign to better the foregoing figures.

Furthermore, a Rockefeller success in Oregon, great though its impact would be, could never have a truly decisive impact. The Nixon delegate search has been long, arduous and efficient. It is continuing and being intensified. If Rockefeller is to win at Miami, therefore, he must not merely succeed in Oregon. He must also go on looking like a pretty sure winner against Lyndon B. Johnson in November, while Nixon goes on looking like a pretty sure loser.

The truth of the matter is that the New York governor's embryonic candidacy is more keyed to the public opinion polls, and will be more affected by the pollsters' fugitive findings, than any other candidacy in our recent political history. If the polls turn against Rockefeller, his chances will be pretty slender.

The polls can turn against Rockefeller in two ways, moreover. To begin with, deepening political trouble for President Johnson can cause the President to drop behind Nixon. That, in itself, should be enough to remove, or at least to blur, the former Vice President's loser image. And if that happens, Nixon's inherent delegate strength can put him over.

By the same token, Rockefeller could be greatly hurt by a change in the present polling pattern, which shows him with far more power to win votes than the former Vice President. A good though extreme sample of the pattern was the Connecticut poll, already cited in this space, which showed Rockefeller taking 30 per cent of the Democratic votes to beat Mr. Johnson in a close race, while the President, in turn, absolutely snowed under Nixon.

Depending on the polls—and Rockefeller has no alternative—is obviously an immense gamble. The risks are all the greater, this year, because of the third-party candidacy of the racist former governor of Alabama, George Wallace. Any poll that leaves out Wallace will be worthless. And only an all-wise Providence knows how many votes for Wallace will be worthless. And only an all-wise Providence knows how many votes for Wallace will be gained if there is bad trouble in the cities.

Our present prospects, however, it seems most likely that the Republicans at Miami will have to choose between the moderate Rockefeller, with excellent prospects of winning the White House if they nominate him, and Nixon, with the backing of Barry Goldwater, but with fairly doubtful prospects of defeating President Johnson if nominated.

No one should ever underestimate the limits of Republican folly, but if there is this kind of clear choice, Rockefeller will be an excellent bet to get the nomination. He is made a better bet, moreover, for two other reasons little noticed as yet.

On the one hand, he is no longer the rather unhappy and uneasy man, driven by a feverish ambition, that he was only four years ago. He is at ease with himself and the world, as events have already shown. On the other hand, the country has somehow managed to get to know him much better—and to know, above all, that he offers the kind of leadership the country so badly needs.

Safety Director Urges Parents to Support Program

A nine-point program aimed at curbing fatalities and crippling injuries to children resulting from traffic accidents was recommended today by Harry H. Brainerd, commissioner of traffic safety.

Brainerd, who is serving as the 1968 Easter Seal traffic safety chairman, directed his recommendations to parents in urging statewide support of the "People Have Got to Help People" campaign sponsored by the Pennsylvania Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., and its local chapters. In his appeal urging public support of this year's Easter Seal Child Safety Crusade to provide the help and encouragement youngsters need to adjust to handicaps resulting from crippling, Brainerd offered the following suggestions to parents:

1. Teach the child to be a good pedestrian from the time he understands the spoken word — by word and example — the meaning of safe conduct on roads, driveways, streets and highways; a knowledge of traffic safety rules and the development of good pedestrian sense are far more vital to most American children than knowing how to swim.

2. Remember that the safest place for children is the rear seat — not the "suicide" location beside the driver, with seat belts attached.

3. Children should stay seated at all times; never should they be allowed to stand.

4. Children should not be permitted to lean out or dangle arms or legs from car windows.

5. Remember that without special devices, most car doors can be opened from the inside even when "safely locked" remembering, too, that locked doors are useless unless "little hands" have been trained not to unlock them.

6. Teach the "little ones" that while a wrestling match may be all right in the playroom at home, it will not be tolerated in the family car.

7. Remove all "booby traps" from the family car; piles of clothing, books, sharp objects and toys on the rear window ledge — such items create an added hazard in the event of an accident or sudden stop.

8. Maintain discipline as an important safety tool in your car; make it clear to children that they are not to distract the driver.

9. Drive, for the first 16 years of your child's life, as though you were teaching him to drive — for you will be doing just that!

10. Remember that without special devices, most car doors can be opened from the inside even when "safely locked" remembering, too, that locked doors are useless unless "little hands" have been trained not to unlock them.

11. Remember that without special devices, most car doors can be opened from the inside even when "safely locked" remembering, too, that locked doors are useless unless "little hands" have been trained not to unlock them.

DON NEAL West Bank Development

The recent release of a program for development of recreational facilities on the west bank of the Kinzua Dam by the U.S. Forest Service leaves many questions to be answered. Questions that must be answered if the public is to be in a position to determine if the hastily prepared schedule is valid, or little more than a gleam in the eyes of the ANF staff.

Historically, the residents of Warren County have ample reason to be cautious in accepting the new schedule at its face value. Experience has taught them much over the years as they have seen other programs and completion dates go by the boards without so much as an explanation as to why glowing promises were not kept.

Before the Forest Service was named as the agency of development the public was told that if this agency was named every needed recreational facility would be constructed and ready for public use before the dam filled with water. Now we are told that this supervisor was too enthusiastic, and it's laughingly suggested we forget such a commitment was ever made.

Following the appointment of the Forest Service, the Allegheny Reservoir Advisory Council was appointed. After a series of conferences by this body a master plan for the development of the recreational facilities in the area of the Kinzua Dam was published in 1966. This master plan established the priorities of the various projects and set up a schedule of completion dates, designating the program as "the action plan."

Yet anyone familiar with this plan is aware that the anticipated action has not been forthcoming. Projects that were scheduled for completion by June 1967 are still on the planning boards or in the earliest stages of construction, other projects scheduled for completion in June of 1968 are no further advanced, and some proposed projects seem to have been entirely forgotten. Only the low budget, simple-construction projects have been meeting deadlines.

Of the six projects proposed in the recent release, only two appeared in the master plan. Hooks Brook was scheduled for 100 per cent completion by June 1967, and Fishburn was scheduled for completion by June 1968. Now, however, the boat launch ramp at Fishburn is scheduled for 1969, the campground for 1973, and the overlook for 1974. Hook's Brook is scheduled for 1975.

One of these, as well as three others, pose the problem of access. On different occasions I have been told that no government agency (Forest Service, Corps of Engineers, or Park Service) would consider constructing roads on private lands. In every case where the problem arose it was suggested the county build the road to the federal boundary and the concerned agency would take over from there. Even with the proposed acquisition on the west bank by the Forest Service, areas of private land would lay between the Scandia road and the proposed recreational sites.

Has there been a change of policy in this respect? And, how much additional land would have to be acquired for right-of-way purposes? Or for that matter, how would federal right-of-way through private lands affect the private landowner?

Of personal concern to me was the fact that no mention was made of the road to Roper Hollow in the "west bank" release. A year ago we were told that the improvement of this road was in engineering and that it would be one of the earliest projects undertaken by the Forest Service when acquisition was completed. So when it wasn't mentioned I called Bob Rich.

Bob told me that this was an oversight, and after checking with John Lupis, chief engineer, said that the Roper Hollow road would be completed in 1970.

I was also concerned because the proposed development at Cornplanter Run wasn't mentioned. If we are ever to have a west bank marina to serve the mid-section of the lake this is the most logical location. And while the bay there is smaller than the one at Hodge Run, it is well protected from prevailing winds and has more level land surrounding it. Furthermore, with the township owning at least some right-of-way from the existing township road down the Cornplanter hollow it would seem that access at this point would be less of a problem.

However, in spite of the reluctance I have to accept the Forest Service's completion dates on the sites they propose, I am just as reluctant to assume that private development offers any better chance of getting the quick development along the west bank the public has a right to expect. If anything, I would support acquisition of the 5,700 acres by the Forest Service because they have a plan and as yet the private landowners haven't offered one, especially if I thought the present maneuvering on their part was only to imply a greater effort to get a higher price for their land from the government.

If this is their purpose, then it is high time the commissioners take a "second look" at the assessed value on forest lands. There would be ample reason to suspect that the lands are more valuable than is presently supposed and adjustments should be in order.

Otherwise, the private landowners should be expected to come up with some positive proposals as to what they can do to assist in developing the recreational potential of the Scandia area. And they should be as prompt in doing this as the Forest Service has been so that a "to be, or not to be" decision can be reached in the least possible amount of time.

Presently, as one tries to evaluate the muddled aspects of the land acquisition on the west bank, so many unanswered questions pop up that rational deduction becomes close to impossible. In some cases statements have been made that appear to be "very unkind" to the truth. In other cases innuendo has substituted for the factual. So that in the end a muddled situation has become more muddled.

And yet the only issue to consider is what is best for Warren County in the end. The Forest Service has been less than diligent in meeting its commitments on the recreational front, a fact they admit. But if we allow ourselves to be stampeded because of this into a fanatical crusade for "private ownership" and "the free enterprise system" the result could be disastrous.

What is needed now is a statement from both sides as to what their intentions are, so firmly and clearly stated that no unanswered questions hide in the background, to firm the issues to where the public can consider them intelligently. Unless this is done, and done promptly, we must assume that the best interests of the community are being sacrificed by those who aspire to group or individual goals.

Protest Ouster Of Two Popular Instructors

COLLEGEVILLE, Pa. (AP)—Ursinus College students wore black arm bands, put up posters and signed petitions Wednesday protesting the ouster of two popular instructors.

About 800 of the college's 1,100 students signed petitions over the dismissal of Gary Waldo, who teaches history, and Wesley C. Clymer, an English instructor. The students claimed the instructors were dismissed for their liberal philosophy and for differing with the administration.

Dr. Donald L. Helfferich, Ursinus president, denied the charges. He said it is school policy to permit younger staff members to "rotate" through other institutions to broaden them, and to bring "new blood" to the school.

Waldo, 29, said his "outspoken" criticism of the administration brought his dismissal. Clymer was not available for comment.

The students will present their protests to the college board of directors March 22.

NO NEED TO RUB IT IN

Florida rubs it in on East St. billboard in Pittsburgh as late winter storm belts area with four inches of snow. Area residents now in the sunny South are probably more than glad to be there after reading the news from home. Although other areas were harder hit, Warren County got a sizeable share of the sudden snowstorm, which was all the more unwelcome after several springlike days.

Steele-ing The Sports Scene

No, Not Yet

Remember that column we promised you on our most memorable and not-so-memorable moments during our three-year hitch here?

Well, this isn't it, but we're working on it. If you've guessed that this is another wrestling column, you get a gold star.

The mat season isn't quite over--Nationals coming up weekend after this at Penn State--and the alternatives are the two college cage tournaments, spring baseball and the PIAA playoffs. Since those subjects are adequately (?) covered by the wire service, we believe it's only fair that we fill local mat fans in on their sport.

The NAIA tournament in Colorado last weekend, for example.

Sunday night's wire didn't carry a word on it, and we didn't even know who the champions were until yesterday, when we received the Lock Haven Express. (That was Monday's. The Post Office Department delivered last Saturday's on Tuesday!)

In all fairness to the AP, we should point out here that the TMO no longer is serviced by the sports wire, which would have carried the results. Our source now is the general wire, which includes boiled-down highlights of the sports wire. That's the reason that standings on the NBA and NHL are run so infrequently. (No more phone calls, please!)

Anyway, about the NAIA's:

Pennsylvania had only one winner, Lock Haven's 115-pounder Ken Melchior. Rich Stuyvesant, former Greenville State Champion now at Moorhead, was second at 145. Superior's Dick Tressler, ex-State champ from State College, was runner-up at 123, and Lock Haven's Jim Blacksmith lost his 160-pound crown.

Joe Gerst of Bloomsburg was ahead 7-1 in the 152-pound finale, then ran out of gas and lost, 12-7. Ron Russo, also of Bloomsburg, was runner-up at 137. For Clarion, 137-pounder Randy Stine finished fourth and Santo Ricotta, the ex-Clearfield ace, took a fifth place at 167.

Besides Melchior, the champions were: 123-Cullen Carey, Platteville; 130-Doug Neuhaert, Northern State; 137-Mike Stanley, Adams State; 145-Roy Washington, Omaha; 152-Larry Michelson, Wayne State; 160-Wendell Hakanson, Omaha (described as "the world's largest 160-pounder"); 167-Lemoin Merkley, Central Washington (voted the Outstanding Wrestler award); 177-Glen Engle, Adams State; 191-Dom Carollo, Adams State; Heavyweight-Wade Winters, Westmar.

Needless to say, Adams State, with three champions, won the team title and Frank Powell was named Coach of the Year. Bloomsburg was the top Pennsylvania team, fifth, and Lock Haven, the defending champ, slipped all the way to seventh. Clarion was eleventh out of 63 teams.

If we may be allowed to alibi for Lock Haven (and who has a better right?), the Bald Eagles had six regulars injured either before or during the tourney, including champion Melchior. The others were Shane Foley, PSCC winner earlier this season, Denny Killian, Jack Klingaman, John Trent Smith and Bob Metz.

To relate a few tourney sidelights, Engle, Adams State's 177-pound champ, wrestled junior varsity until the tourney and, when Don Apodaca moved down to 167, he stepped in and went all the way to the title. Apodaca lost to Merkley in the finals, 10-4.

Carollo was the NAIA heavyweight champion last season and runner-up to Arizona State's Curly Culp in the NCAA's. He'll be at 191 again for the Nationals at Penn State.

To illustrate that mat judges don't necessarily eliminate all the problems of a single referee, an interesting event happened at last weekend's Easterns at Pitt.

During the 167-pound championship match, one of the finalists was in the process of being turned on his back when the ref stopped the match, called him for stalling and awarded his opponent one point. Following the bout, however, the coach of the wrestler who had received the point entered an appeal that, if the match had not been stopped, his boy would have been awarded at least predicament points and would have tied instead of losing.

The mat judges considered the appeal valid, reversed the referee's decision, awarded the predicament points and the match went into overtime. There was no scoring in the extra time and the wrestler who had been the apparent winner before the appeal won the title by a referee's decision.

How about that?

STEELE SHAVINGS-Tim Passaro, ex-Dragon grappler, earned his letter as a member of Notre Dame's mat team during the past season. Scot Melville, Warren Beverage's ace southpaw, is one of five starters back for the Slippery Rock State College nine.

Jim Nelson, star end for Ridgway High's undefeated grid team, has accepted a four-year athletic scholarship to North Carolina State. He was recruited by defensive coach Al Michels, formerly of DuBois.

SMALL COLLEGE CHAMPS

The 11 winners in the sixth annual NCAA College Division wrestling tournament (not to be confused by the NAIA tourney discussed in Sports Editor Larry Steele's column at left) on Saturday were (left to right): kneeling-Curd Alexander (115), Northeast Missouri St.; Rick Sanders (123), Portland State; Glen Younger (130), Western State; Masuru Yatabe (137), Portland State and Kent Wyatt (145), Cal Poly. Standing-John Finch (152), Cal Poly; Joe Wiendl (160), Wilkes College (Pa.); Mike Gallego (167), Fresno State; Larry Amundson (177), Mankato State; Tom Kline (191), Cal Poly and Kent Osborn (heavyweight), Northern Iowa.

Junior High Cage League Adopted by School Board

A junior high school basketball league program was approved for 1968-69 at Monday night's meeting of the Warren County School District Board of Directors.

The program was recommended by the Athletic Committee headed by Chairman L. A. Pearson. Other members of the committee are Robert Johnson, R. D. Thompson and Leroy W. Christianson.

Under a proposed outline presented by the committee, competition would be held among the five county schools on two levels. A ninth grade league would consist of two teams from each school. A 12-game schedule has been suggested, with each game composed of four six-minute quarters.

A seventh and eighth grade league would be made up of three teams from each county school. Each team would play a 12-game slate and quarters would be limited to five minutes each.

The possibility of additional games for the ninth grade teams outside of league play was also mentioned. The program will not interfere with current interscholastic play by county teams.

A twice-a-week practice schedule was suggested for the ninth graders, with games to be played Wednesday evenings. The seventh and eighth grade teams would practice at least once a week and play on Saturday mornings.

The plan calls for the employment of registered officials for all ninth grade league games and for seventh and eighth grade games when possible.

The total cost of the program for one year was computed to be $1,930, which includes transportation, equipment and supplies and officials. Coaches within the school district would be utilized for the first year of the program.

All details of the suggested program are subject to change.

In other action, the board, under recommendation of the Athletic Committee, approved the establishment of one additional assistant football coaching position at Youngsville High School for 1968-69 and the continuation of the Varsity Award system adopted in 1967.

Under the awards system, the purchase of letter sweaters is the responsibility of each school. The style and color of sweaters and letters was specified for the five county high schools.

Buccos Blanked By ChiSox, 4-0

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Four Chicago White Sox pitchers combined in a four-hitter Wednesday and shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0 in a spring training game.

Jack Fisher pitched the first four innings and gave up three of the hits. Gary Peters gave up one hit in three innings while Hoyt Wilhelm and Wilbur Wood each pitched a perfect inning.

The White Sox collected 13 hits, including seven from losing pitcher Jim Bunning. Tommy Davis led the attack with two singles and a double. Ken Boyer and Rocky Colavito had two singles each.

Phillies Paced By Grand Slam

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Bob Schellenberg's pinch-hit grand slam home run paced the Philadelphia Phillies to an 8-0 baseball victory over the Houston Astros.

The seventh inning feat made Schellenberg—with only two times at the plate—the team leader in home runs and runs batted in during the young training season.

In his previous at bat on Sunday, Schellenberg hit a three-run homer.

Gaining the shutout were pitchers Woody Fryman, who worked the first four innings and allowed two hits, and Larry Colton, who allowed no hits in three innings.

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Williamsport advanced to the PIAA Class A Eastern basketball semifinals Wednesday night defeating Nanticoke, the District 2, titlists, 74-57.

The victory marked the second year in succession in which Williamsport has eliminated Nanticoke (21-2) from state play-off competition.

The Millionaires, now 23-1, will face Cheltenham on Wednesday, March 20, in Harrisburg's Farm Show Arena for the Eastern finals. A win would earn them the right to play the state championship match with the Western Pennsylvania representative.

Greg Spotts, a 6-5 forward, sparked Williamsport with a 26 point performance. LaVerne Whalley scored 20 points and Joe Walker, who shared rebounding honors with Spotts, chipped in with 14 and 12 points respectively.

Charley Wetzel and Phil Levandowski were high scorers for Nanticoke with 19 and 18 points respectively.

Pat Hesch sunk the winning bucket in the final minute of play to give Jefferson a 20-18 victory over Market Street in a Gra-Y Basketball League contest yesterday.

Market had led at halftime, 7-6.

Hesch finished with 11 points, Don Olson had nine and Mark Tassone added two. Al Torrance was high for Market with nine points, Willie LeMeur threw in four and Tom Gay had three.

The win boosted Jeff's second half record to 5-1 and left Market at 3-3.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Pennsylvania Athletic Commission recognized Philadelphia Joe Frazier as the world heavyweight boxing champion Wednesday.

Frazier's recent victory in New York over Buster Mathis gave him world champion status in New York, Massachusetts, Illinois and Maine.

However, as a member of the World Boxing Association, the Pennsylvania commission refused until now to acknowledge Frazier's claim.

The decision of the three-man commission means Frazier will be allowed to box in "title fights" in Pennsylvania.

Tournament last night by whipping the Titusville Maysels, varsity players from Titusville High School, 72-60.

The Indies, all Dragon underclassmen, held on to an early lead to post their second straight victory in the single-elimination tourney. The win vaulted them into a semifinal contest on Friday at 7:30 p.m. against the winner of tonight's Oil City-Franklin game.

Warren took a 19-12 first period lead, then outscored Titusville by 20-16 in the second stanza to carry an 11-point bulge, 39-28, into the locker room.

In the third quarter, the Indies managed a 12-11 margin, then played the Maysels even in the final stanza, 21-21, to notch the triumph.

Junior Larry Spence, a Dragon jayvee starter all season, took game-high honors for the locals with 22 points. Sophomore Ed O'Neill gunned 20 points and Juniors Dan Krumm and Randy Jones had 12 and 11 respectively.

For Titusville, Gary Barker hit 20 points. High-scoring Jim Romaniszyn was held to 14 and both George Barker and Stewart had 10 each.

Warren outshot Titusville from the floor, making 28 field goals to 23 for the Maysels, and held a 16-14 edge from the free throw line.

A second Warren team, made up of seniors, had been eliminated from the tourney on Tuesday night.

Titans Post 2nd NAIA Win, 70-69

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Bill Samuels of Westminster College popped in a fielder at the buzzer Wednesday to give the New Wilmington, Pa., school a 70-69 triumph over Monmouth, N.J., and the Titans' second last-second victory in the National Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament.

Henry Moore of Monmouth had scored with 10 seconds left, but Samuels wiped out the advantage with a one-hander from outside the foul circle.

The score was tied 10 times and the lead changed hands six times in the first half. Westminster controlled the second half until the game became a seesaw battle again with six minutes left.

The Titans, who defeated Pasadena, Calif., 69-67 in the first round, moved on to the quarterfinals.

Eastern Michigan defeated Hanover, Ind., 94-81; and Fairmont, W. Va., drubbed New Haven College of West Haven, Conn., 97-72 to move into the quarterfinals.

Cheltenham will meet the winner of Saturday night's clash between Williamsport and Allentown Dieruff.

Larry Arp, who played with four fouls the entire second half, had 20 points for Steel-High.

Bunning's Ambition: Win Two World Series Games

FT. MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Jim Bunning usually is too businesslike to talk about goals for a season. This year, however, the big right hander has a serious objective — to win two World Series games.

Bunning's thinking is typical of the attitude of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a team dedicated to making up for last year's flop in the National League pennant race. An overwhelming choice to win, the Pirates wound up an ignominious sixth.

Time is running out on the 35-year-old Bunning's ambition to pitch in at least one World Series before his unusual fall-off-the-mound style disappears from the major league scene. He believes this is the year his season is capped with the fall classic.

"I think we have a chance, if every guy on this club has the season he's capable of, of winning by 10 games. We could have the same kind of year the Cardinals had last season."

"If we don't put it all together we still could win, and there aren't many clubs in the league like that."

Bunning said he sees no sign of the so-called dissension which is supposed to have wrecked the Pirates in 1967, causing the mid-season dismissal of Manager Harry Walker.

"There is a relaxed atmosphere. Manager Larry Shepard will help this club. If anyone is going to get this club to respond, Shep will."

"He's treating everybody like a man. Of course there are people who will abuse this, but Shep has the ability to handle men, which is the most important attribute of a manager."

Bunning said he already is at his playing weight, 203 pounds, and feels as strong as at any time in his 13-year big league career.

"I'm loose. My arm is sound, not a pain. I intend to stick with the same old success formula," said the crew cut father of nine who won 74 games for the Philadelphia Phillies in four years before being dealt this winter to the Pirates.

The 6-foot-3 right hander said he'll go with the fast ball and breaking pitches which have carried him to 192 major league victories, "unless enough hitters convince me to change my mind." All he wants is to pitch every fourth day.

It was suggested in one quarter that Bunning might be more effective if he worked in a five man rotation. He doesn't buy the theory.

"A five man rotation is okay," he said, "if you have five pitchers of equal ability. I know I'm more effective every four days. I've proven that in the last four years when I've had about five bad games a season. I hope to work as much or more."

It's tough to argue with a pitcher on this count when you note ERA figures of 2.63, 2.60, 2.41 and 2.28 in the last four seasons. He's struck out 219, 268, 352 and 253 over the same period and this season probably will advance to third behind Cy Young and Walter Johnson on the all-time strikeout list.

Bunning is earning a reported $100,300 this season on a one-year contract. If the Pirates win the pennant, that figure may be chicken feed in 1969.

Pro Golf's Big Three At Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player—the big three of pro golf who once struck fear in the hearts of their challengers—will match shots for the first time this year in a flashy field that starts battling Thursday in the Orlando Open Golf Tournament.

However, the young Turks who have dominated the Gulf tour this winter—Tom Weiskopf, Kermit Zarley and George Knudson—also are in the $115,000 showdown on the Rio Pinar course, along with defending champion Julius Boros and the winner of last week's Doral Open, Gardner Dickinson.

Player, the little South African rancher making his first tour start of the season, spent the last six days in Orlando tuning up for his 1968 debut. Palmer, who won the Bob Hope Desert Classic, ranks only 11th on the money list this year and Nicklaus is 27th and still bidding for his first victory.

Weiskopf, the Ohio belter who won the San Diego Open and finished second at Doral when he bogeyed the last hole, is among the tournament favorites. The 25-year-old slugger is the leading money winner of the year with $46,242, more than he won in all of 1967.

Knudson, handsome Canadian who won the Phoenix and Tucson titles, has earned $43,662, his all-time high. Both Weiskopf and Knudson will be trying to add the $21,000 first-place pot to their winnings, but the field is the toughest of the year. Only absentee of stature is Billy Casper, who is touring Europe.

Leo Ousted, Claims Can't Stop Spitter

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "You're not going to stop pitchers from throwing the spitball, no matter what you do," says Leo Durocher, manager of the Chicago Cubs.

"The pitchers will find some way to throw it," he added.

Durocher, who has been in professional baseball since 1925, had just been ejected in the fourth inning of the Cubs' 12-2 exhibition loss to the San Francisco Giants Tuesday.

He admitted a temporary order issued Tuesday would "help a little. But the pitcher's concentration will still be broken."

Commissioner William Eckert modified the new spitball rule. Originally, pitchers were ejected after two violations—either touching their mouth or spitting into their glove.

The modification, to be in effect until the rules committee meets sometime before the season starts, treats the second violation as a balk. Pitchers are merely warned after the first violation.

Two of Durocher's pitchers were thrown out at Palm Springs, Calif., and many fans left the park as relievers consumed 20 minutes warming up.

Durocher said he made a derogatory remark when third base umpire Mel Steiner moved in as Durocher went to the mound to warn Ferguson Jenkins about putting his hand to his mouth.

Durocher pointed out that pitchers could wet the ball by touching their forehead or the back of their neck when action is diverted to another part of the field.

Durocher would not say whether he believes the spitball should be legalized, but said, "I tell my batters to hit anything, no matter what kind of a pitch it is, if it's over the plate."

Elvin Hayes Making Olympic Cage Plans

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Elvin Hayes, college basketball's Player of the Year, said Wednesday he definitely will compete in the Olympics "if I can make the team."

The scoring star for the undefeated Houston Cougars said he will have no part of the Olympic boycott by some Negro athletes.

"If I make the Olympic team I'll definitely play," he said. "If I can make the team and help my country then it's my duty to play. Those others, someone is

NFL Players, Owners Start Talks Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) — John Gory, president of the National Football League Players Association, said Wednesday collective bargaining sessions with NFL owners would begin in Chicago next Tuesday.

Gory said his group had been granted certification to represent the players after a card check by the American Arbitration Association in New York confirmed that the NFLPA represented more than a majority of the players in the league.

This was confirmed by the NFL.

While no figures were given in the NFLPA's announcement, it said previously that its goals included a $15,000 minimum salary, $500 a game for exhibitions and an annual $5 million contribution to the pension fund.

"If I make the Olympic team it would mean more moneywise than anything I've done in college," he said. "It's making you know all over the world. Every country will be watching you and you'll be playing against the best from all over the world."

Hayes said he has read that some teams might offer him a $250,000 contract.

The Houston Mavericks of the American Basketball Association have confirmed that they have obtained that league's negotiations rights for Hayes. The official draft is set for April 27.

"I can keep pitching like I have been pitching, I can do it."

The King of the Knuckleballers doesn't appear to be the least bit excited over the fact that he is approaching one of the seemingly unapproachable records, Cy Young's stupendous feat in the long ago of having pitched in the most major league games, 906.

Old Cy, however, finished almost everyone he started and produced 511 victories, a total that is far beyond the attainment of any modern—or even any two moderns combined. But Wilhelm is strictly a relief pitcher these days and his win column contains the modest figure of 126, which is more than a whoop and a holler from 511.

Yet Hoyt's flutter ball still dances tantalizingly around the bats of enemy hitters and he looks as effective as ever even though he is close to being 45 years of age, the oldest man in the big leagues. In many respects Wilhelm symbolizes the White Sox this season. He is advanced in years and he represents strong pitching.

"Can't tell the players without a scorecard," sang out Manager Eddie Stanky in greeting. "Especially this club. We swung a couple of major deals last winter and have added a great deal of pluses since this time a year ago."

Up to midseason last year the Chicagoans had been doing it all on superior pitching and their nickname of "The Hitless Wonders" was well earned. But when they intruded on the pennant fight with considerable emphasis they added a couple of elderly musclemen last July, Ken Boyer, aged 36, and Rocky Colavito, aged 35.

The Chisox have since regained from the Orioles the still slick shortstop, Luis Aparicio, aged 34, and added Russ Snyder, also 34, to the outfield. They have reinforced themselves with Tommy Davis, practically an adolescent at 29, and have turned around their image. This has become an all-out year for their moon shot, possibly mortgaging the future for it.

"My baseball philosophy," said Stanky in measured tones, "is to worry one year at a time. We're shooting for the pennant in 1968 and that means we're not worrying about 1969 or 1970."

The Brat still bristles when he talks, wearing a perpetual chip on his shoulder. Most experts think that the Red Sox can't repeat but that the American League race will be a five or six-team scramble. Does the bellicose little battler agree?

"No," he said. "You may not believe it but I still like Boston in spite of Jim Lonborg's stupidity in smashing up his leg in a skiing accident. He should have had more sense than to go on the hill."

"I don't foresee a scramble but think two or three teams will break away. I pick the Red Sox first with the Twins and Tigers up there. We also will be contenders along with the dark horse Indians."

Good grief, Charlie Brown! Nobody ever mentions the Indians any more, not even General Custer.

"I always tell the truth," said the truthful Stanky, "I got in trouble last year when I answered the question as to what team had looked best against us. I said Detroit and also said they should win by 10 games. They blasted me in Detroit for that. They said I put Mayo Smith on a terrible spot. Nonsense. A manager is on the spot as soon as he signs a contract."

"One thing about us this year is that I intend to have the eight best hitters in my lineup each day and never mind the defense. I expect to shuffle everyone around. I didn't get Colavito or Davis or Boyer to hit homers. I got them to drive in runs. And another thing no one seems to mention is that I've added pitching strength with Jack Fisher. If he could win nine games for the Mets, he can win a lot more for us."

Stanky's gaze kept sweeping into focus every hired hand within range.

"Another thing," he said, "is that a manager has to earn his money this spring. He has to settle on 25 men before the season opens. He can't sit around and tell funny stories like Casey Stengel."

Having tossed a stray harpoon in the direction of Ol' Case, The Brat expounded on his practice of giving little bonuses of clothing to players who perform above and beyond the call of duty.

"Joe Horlen picked up $700 worth of clothes last year," he said. "No matter how much money a man makes, he still likes to have his boss show him that he's appreciated. This is a green-stamp age, my friend."

If the White Sox win the pennant—and they may—they'll haul in so much loot that they won't even need green stamps.

KEYSTONE SPORTS ROUNDUP

Boxer Joe Frazier Boycotts Pa.

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP State Sports Editor
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Four state heavyweight champion Joe Frazier won't fight in Pennsylvania until his home state commission recognizes him as successor to Cassius Clay. Frazier's manager, Larry D. Ham, said today that the Pennsylvania commission has departed from National Boxing Association policies in this area previously, and should have stood behind Frazier. When Duquesne and West Virginia met in a freshman basketball game Feb. 8 at Pittsburgh, it marked the first meeting of the two on the court in 20 years. The last time Duquesne played the Mountaineers in basketball, Red Manning, current coach of the Dukes, was a starter for Duquesne. There still are no plans for the varsity teams to meet.

GRUNT AND GROAN — Five champions will defend their titles March 21-23 in the 1968 NCAA Wrestling Championships at Penn State. In all, 40 place winners from the 1967 meet are eligible for the competition. Rick Sanders of Portland State in the 115-pound division is the only two-time defending champion. He was Pan American winner last summer and second in the New Delhi World Games this past fall.

NEW STAKE — Liberty Bell Park's brand new stake, the $100,000 Colonial for 2-year-olds and up is slated for Sept. 14, and the trotting event may be run in the daytime to gain national attention. Track president Ed Dougherty expects the Colonial to join the top three or four events in harness racing within a few years. Hal Greer of the Philadelphia 76ers passed the 15,000 point mark this week. Billy Melchioni of the 76ers is the first of four brothers to make good in basketball. Billy was a star at Villanova where his brother now plays, while still to come are Gary, a junior at Bishop Eustace Prep in New Jersey, and Tommy, a freshman at the same school. Billy says Tommy may be the best shooter of the bunch.

Rick Monday Raps Free Agent Draft

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Rick Monday got $104,000 as the No. 1 pick in baseball's first free agent draft in 1965 but he has some reservations about the system.

"It might be a good thing for baseball but some players might get more money in an open market," said the 22-year-old center fielder of the Oakland A's. "I'm satisfied. I wouldn't have got any more. But it could hurt guys who are picked in the third and fourth rounds."

In the free agent draft, the clubs pick in inverse order of the last year's standings. That was how Kansas City — now Oakland — got first pick. A player can negotiate only with the selecting club. If he doesn't sign in six months, he goes back into the pool.

Monday spent his first two years in the minors at Lewiston, Idaho, and Mobile, Ala. He moved up to the big club last year.

"I knew when I came out of the Marines I had 30 days to get in shape and play up to expectations or I would be sent to Triple A," said Monday. "They decided to keep me."

"People ask me if it wouldn't be better to stay in the minors to get experience. I tell everybody there is no way to compare the experience you get up here with that in the minors. Staying up was a tremendous help to me."

Some clubs try to protect left-handed hitters, like Monday, by keeping them away from left-handed pitchers. The A's decided to let Monday play against all kinds of pitching. They figured he had to learn to face them all sooner or later and might just as well start now.

"I go crazy on the bench," he said. "That is the way I am built. I have confidence in myself."

Monday played last year when he could have been taking time out to recover from injuries. He is a young man in a hurry to make good.

Despite the vagaries of a rookie year and the injuries, Monday wound up with a fair .251 average, led the club with 14 homers and drove in 58 runs.

OUT OF THE WEST — John McKay, coach of Southern California's major college football champions, will be on the faculty of the National Football Clinic in Atlantic City, N.J., Convention Hall March 25, 26, 27. Penn State basketball coach Jeff Persson became the first coach to win a history of 1,000 points in his career. John Rushatz' fine athletic career at Lehigh as a football player and wrestler has been ended by a recurrent neck injury. Rushatz was an all Middle Atlantic Conference football player his junior year and an Eastern wrestling champion as a sophomore.

St. Joseph's College (Pa.) has accepted an invitation to play in the pre-Christmas 1970 Jayhawk Basketball Classic in Lawrence, Kan., joining a field of Kansas, North Carolina State and Houston. The Philadelphia Eagles meet the Minnesota Vikings in a National Football League exhibition game in Bloomington, Minn., Aug. 24.

During spring training, the Philadelphia Phillies will scout every major league camp. Joe Kirk, veteran LaSalle College swimming coach, reached a milestone this season, his 200th victory of a 25-year career. Quarterback Don Jones, former Penn State star, broke eight records in the Continental Football League last season while playing for the Orlando (Fla.) Panthers, 56 consecutive conversions, scoring leader with 239 points and five passing marks.

ALSTON'S 'OPERATION BOUNCE BACK'

Dodgers Start 'Run' for NL Flag

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Operation Bounce Back has started at a gallop in Dodger town.

The Dodgers, touching all the bases in a determined bid to rebound from last year's eighth-place finish, have been on the run all winter — first at Los Angeles under the aegis of trainer Bill Buhler and now at their spring base under the scrutiny of Manager Walter Alston and his staff.

Buhler long has advocated distance running as a means of improving player's endurance, strengthening their legs, feet and ankles and preventing injuries. When some of the Dodgers began working out in Los Angeles prior to spring training, Buhler — who runs a mile every day — got the go-ahead for his conditioning program.

The Dodgers ran quarter-miles and half-miles in addition to their regular wind sprints. The trainer planned to have everyone running a mile a day eventually.

When heavy-legged outfielder Al "Bull" Ferrara challenged heavy-legged infielder Jim Lefebvre to a mile race, publicity chief Red Patterson scheduled a Florida Derby for March 30 at Vero Beach and started figuring the early line.

There may be a Derby, but Letebvre has declared himself from the race after being left at the gate in a half-mile prep.

"I beat him at a half-mile — well, almost a half-mile," said Ferrara. "Now he won't race me anymore."

"That's right, I'm not going to run against him anymore," Letebvre confirmed. "But it's his own fault. We weren't supposed to be racing the first time. I was just trotting along. Then, all of a sudden he starts running like crazy. Then he says he's too fast for me."

"They're still going to have another race, but I'm not going to be in it. I'm not one of the fastest guys in camp — but definitely. And neither is Ferrara — although I have to admit he's not bad at the distances."

St. Lawrence Woman May Be First Lady Constable in Pa.

By JOAN B. McDEVITT
Reading Times
READING, Pa. (AP) — "I didn't campaign for the job. In fact, I hadn't even thought about becoming a constable."

But Minerva E. Hilbert of St. Lawrence had some outstanding qualifications. During her four-year stint as a Pottstown policewoman, she was trained in law enforcement and judo. Her years as a nurse at Pottstown Memorial, Valley Forge General and Norristown State hospitals had given her a warm understanding of people and some training in psychology. And for protection, Minerva had "Lady," a German shepherd trained to attack.

The Woman's Club of St. Lawrence felt she was a likely candidate for constable, a post which had been vacant 13 years. In 1961 club members staged a write-in campaign and Minerva was elected. She's believed to be the first woman constable in Pennsylvania. Minerva's been on the job seven years. Last November she was re-elected for six years.

"My job includes serving warrants on people, taking them to the alderman's office for hearings, transporting prisoners to and from Berks County Prison," she said, "and getting involved in their problems."

Minerva believes some people who run afoul of the law have to be helped.

"Some cases are so pitiful and the circumstances so heart-breaking," she said, "I can't help but get involved. A man will cash a bad check because he's so far in debt he's frantic, or a family argument will result in an assault and battery charge. Really, they need a little understanding and help."

"I try to help them get a lawyer—their own if they have one—and often I help them make arrangements for bail. I feel it's part of my job to offer assistance."

There's an element of danger involved in Minerva's job, and her husband, Donald, a garage owner, often goes along with her.

"But basically," she said, "I rely on my dog for protection. I don't need a gun like most of the men constables do."

"When I transport a prisoner, I put him in the back seat of the car, then I put the dog in beside him. I warn him not to make any sudden moves because the dog is trained to attack."

Sofar, Minerva has only been threatened once.

"That was on the first job I had," she related. "I had to stand by for a landlord while a couple, evicted from their apartment, moved their belongings out."

"The man had a gun and threatened to blow my head off. He also told me if I let the dog out of the car he would shoot her. I called for assistance."

To date, constable Hilbert has always delivered her prisoner.

"Only once did I come close to losing one," she said. "He saw me and the dog coming and ran. After he had about an hour and a half to think about it, he called me and turned himself in."

Cary Grant Gets Nurses In New York All Atwitter

NEW YORK (AP) — A set of runaway truck wheels put actor Cary Grant in a small Queens hospital, and to a bevy of young nurses Wednesday it was "the biggest event since the Great Blackout."

"We made him a get-well card and we're trying to send it to him," said a giggly student nurse at St. John's Queens Hospital. "We have not had as much excitement around here since the blackout of 1965," read the card. "We wish you a speedy recovery."

However, a tight security guard outside Room 453 thwarted most of the 200 hospital staff members seeking a peek at the film star.

"The kids said they were going up to Room 553 so they could drill a hole through the ceiling," said Mary Ann Hanratty, a senior student nurse.

Even many of the 27 Roman Catholic nuns at the hospital were atwitter. Staff nurse Barbara Ryan explained: "What does any woman say about Cary Grant? Nuns are women too, you know."

As for Grant, still a matinee idol at 64, his only comment, relayed through a spokesman, was: "I feel like I'm in a B picture."

Grant, a companion, Gratia von Furstenberg, 23, and a chauffeur, Troy Lindahl, 33, were injured Tuesday night en route to Kennedy Airport on the rain-soaked Long Island Expressway.

Two trucks collided in the oncoming lane and the rear four wheels of one were knocked off. The flying wheels jumped the center divider and smashed head-on into Grant's limousine.

Grant was bruised about the face and chest, as he was thrown forward from the rear seat.

Most seriously hurt was Miss von Furstenberg. She had leg fractures and a broken collarbone. Lindahl suffered a broken knee bone.

Guest Speaker

The Rev. Charles M. McIntyre of Chancellors Valley was guest speaker at Tuesday's regular meeting of the Youngsville Kiwanis Club.

Mr. McIntyre presented a colored slide talk with commentary by Mrs. McIntyre on their trip to the Holy Land and other European countries. The program was termed excellent by the 19 members present.

Administration Criticized On Civil Disorders

WASHINGTON—Three members of a Senate subcommittee criticized the Johnson administration Wednesday for a failure to actively support the recommendations of the National Advisory Commission on civil disorders.

United States was in danger of splitting into white and Negro societies and said that drastic and costly remedies were needed at once to prevent the "continuing polarization" of the community.

The three—Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y.—made the criticism as the labor and public welfare subcommittee opened hearings on proposals to provide jobs and training for the hardcore unemployed.

The proposal, which seeks to provide up to 2.4 million jobs during the next four years, was strongly endorsed at the hearing by three key members of the Commission on Civil Disorders. They were Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois, chairman of the commission; Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York, vice chairman; and Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okl.

Leading off the criticism of the administration at the hearing was Kennedy, who also disclosed today that he was reconsidering challenging Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Noting that the summer months were approaching, Kennedy said: "We still haven't had a word from the executive branch."

The senator said he was "distressed, quite frankly," that the administration's only action after the riots of last summer "was the appointment of a commission and a day of prayer."

"Let's get on with it," Kennedy said of the commission's findings. "I don't see how the country can go along without the direction that's so desperately needed."

Clark, the chairman of the subcommittee, said it would be "helpful" if the administration endorsed the employment proposal, which follows in general the commission recommendations.

"The legislation before you today presents the congress and the nation with the opportunity to reverse present trends which the commission found had 'the most ominous consequences for our society,'" Lindsay told the subcommittee.

In its 1,400-page report, the commission warned that the

Get prepared, mom and dad, for junior to invade the basement or workshop and to put the bite on the family tool stock. If he's like scores of other boys in the Warren county area, that ambitious son of yours is about to launch a major project—building his 1968 Soap Box Derby racer.

It's a predictable occurrence this time of year, boys itching to get started on car designs and sketches and then moving swiftly into the sawing and pounding stages.

The flourish of Derby work doesn't come a day too soon. Warren county race is scheduled for July 12 and boys know it takes months of preparation if they are going to be tuned up in time for the all important day.

New Teacher Salary Plan Could Mean Income Tax

HARRISBURG (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Ernest P. Kline proposed Wednesday a $500 million borrowing program to aid Pennsylvania's public and private schools, conceding the plan could trigger a state income tax.

Kline, a Beaver County Democrat, introduced a package of four bills that would implement the plan through the creation of a special authority empowered to borrow the money over the next three years through bond issues.

Earlier, Kline told newsmen such a massive borrowing program would require "some kind of tax increase" to back it up. "I personally cannot see any way of funding a program such as envisioned without turning to an income tax," Kline said.

Stressing that there is no easy way to solve the state's fiscal problems, Kline said Pennsylvania has reached "the ultimate crisis as far as education is concerned."

Kline said his proposal would permit the orderly, long-range development of all of Pennsylvania's schools, both public and private.

Although his plan does not

To these energetic craftsmen their work is worth the effort. The new champ will receive a $500 savings bond, an impressive trophy and an expense-paid trip to Akron, Ohio, to compete in the All-American finals for $30,000 in college scholarships awarded by Chevrolet, national sponsor of the Derby.

"There is still plenty of time to enter the 1968 race," explained Nick Petchel, local director. "But boys should sign up now so they won't be caught short of time."

All boys 11 through 15 years of age are eligible to compete in the coasting race and can enter by visiting a sponsoring Chevrolet dealer with a parent or guardian.

Petchel encourages boys who have participated in previous races to take another shot at the title, but he cautioned them to re-study the official rules which include several changes for 1968.

He also stressed that first-time entrants should follow the rules closely to avoid disappointment on inspection day. The 1968 Warren County Soap Box Derby is sponsored by Dan's Chevrolet, Warren Jayvees and Warren Times-Mirror and Observer.

spell out how the $500 million would be distributed, Kline suggested this breakdown:

- $300 million for additional public school subsidies, most of which would be used to increase teachers' salaries.
- $80 million for nonpublic school aid.
- $40 million to increase the scholarship program to a total of $60 million a year.
- $24 million to raise the state's share of community colleges and state-related universities.

"Surely," Kline said, "we as Pennsylvanians who have spent billions for building, highways and bridges, and a half-billion to conserve natural resources, should be able to swing another half-billion dollars for our most important resource — our people."

Kline conceded that the proposal to aid nonpublic schools would generate controversy, even within his own party.

WARREN, PA., THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1968

TM&O Presents New Concept In Public Opinion Polls

LOUIS HARRIS

An entirely new concept in public opinion polls, called "The Harris Survey," will start here in the Times-Mirror and Observer next Monday.

"The Harris Survey" is produced by Louis Harris, the nation's leading public opinion pollster. He is perhaps best known for the opinion-sampling work he did that led to the election of John F. Kennedy in his race for the White House in 1960.

Other notable campaigns in which Harris was employed were the twin victories of Republican Senators John Sherman Cooper and Thurston Morton in Kentucky in 1958, Sen. Frank Church's upset win in Idaho in 1956 and his reelection in 1962, Gov. Pat Brown's victory over Richard Nixon in California in 1962 and the upset victory of New Jersey Republican in winning control of the State Senate in 1962.

In his private political polling, during the past eight years Harris has worked in 214 elections from local to national campaigns. Today, 47 of the present 100 U.S. Senators and 25 of the 50 governors have used Harris' services.

Harris, who is now 42 years old, has been in the public opinion poll field since he joined Elmo Roper as his assistant in 1946. In 1956, by which time he was Roper's partner, he left to establish his own firm. In addition to his political clients, Harris has served as market research expert for such top organizations as the New York Stock Exchange, American Airlines, Standard Oil Company and Johnson and Johnson.

The famous opinion pollster has now served all connection with his political clients and will devote his full time to news writing.

"The Harris Survey" will give a new dimension to political and public affairs polling for newspapers. Harris' findings will not be used on a single question, but rather on a series of probing, penetrating questions in interviews averaging well over one hour in length. The Harris interviewing method is searching and thorough. People will be allowed to express themselves on issues, men and events in their own words.

Whenever public opinion is making news, Harris and his staff of 5000 professional, trained surveyors will be there. They will fan out across the area and interview a scientifically-selected cross section before results are analyzed.

Each week "The Harris Survey" will present a timely and newsworthy story written in clear, crisp news style. When fast-breaking news warrants it, additional articles will be written.

Harris operates 200 scientifically-selected locations across the nation, each staffed by a full complement of interviewers. Immediately there is an important news development, questionnaires are telegraphed, the interviews are conducted in depth and results transmitted to Harris' New York headquarters where each is intensively analyzed and programmed into high-speed computers. During this time Harris will have been in the field himself, interviewing people. The final report will combine the personal touch of a reporter's color and perception with sound and penetrating statistics.

Watch for "The Harris Survey" next Monday. And then make the feature a reading must each week.

"The Harris Survey" is another of the exclusive features that you'll find only in the Times-Mirror and Observer.

Glass Container Strike Is Hurting Everyone

PITTSBURGH (AP) — You'll be drinking more beer from cans and carrying your pills home in boxes because of the 40-day-old glass container strike, but the folks in the heart of Pennsylvania's glass-making country wish that's all they had to worry about.

In Brockway, families are learning to dress up leftovers to make them appear more appetizing. They're reforestalling their creditors. And nobody offers to buy coffee for his buddies any more.

The men who dig the glass sand and the truckers who haul the sand and bottles are out of work, too.

About 1,000 of the 50,000 national members of the Glass Bottle Blowers Union work at the Brockway Glass Corp. plant in Brockway.

One of them is Ed Johnson, 20, of DuBois. He's got one child and his wife is due to give birth to another in May.

"I can't even pay the doctor," says Johnson. "We can't get a job because we have to work picket duty."

Brockway, a town of about 2,500, doesn't have any other industries offering part-time work, anyway.

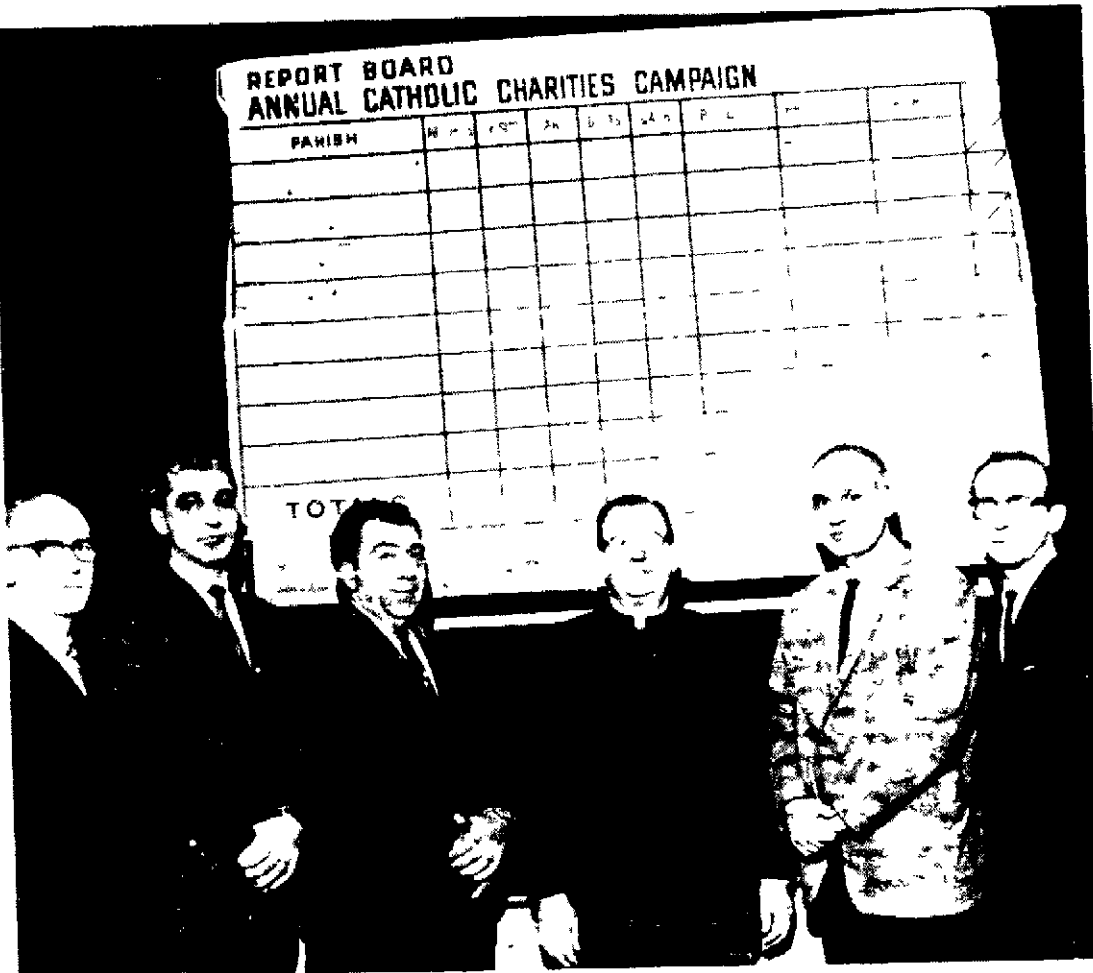

So Johnson and his neighbors are falling back on their savings and signing up for food stamps in droves.

Louise Moore, director of the Jefferson County Department of Public Assistance, said 294 striking families—of 1,274 persons—are getting the stamps, which permit them to get $26 worth of food for two weeks at a minimum of 50 cents to a dollar. Union strike benefits amounted to one $30 check.

Mrs. Jerome Schutz of Brockway says, "We're learning to prepare all our leftovers. And the utility bills are piling up."

But so far creditors have gone easy on the residents. The union business secretary, Miss Mary Scarnotti, said she's had no reports of anyone having utilities shut off.

One tavern owner said his business has been cut in half. Said a restaurant owner: "The boys used to come in and pay for whole tables of coffee. And now they come in, grinning sort of sheepishly, and each pays for his own."

COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN

The general committee chairman for the annual Catholic Charities Campaign in Warren County met Tuesday night in St. Joseph School auditorium where it was revealed the county, with three weeks to go, had pledged $40,670 placing the county over the top with a goal of

CHURCH PASTORS

Pastors of Warren Counties five Catholic Churches and the Rev. Martin A. Grady, pastor of St. Bernard parish, in Bradford, learned Tuesday night that this county had surpassed its $40,400 goal in the annual Catholic Charities Campaign. Pictured, from left are: The

Warren County Tops Goal In Catholic Charities Appeal

The Rev. Martin A. Grady, pastor, St. Bernard Parish in Bradford announced Tuesday night that Warren County has surpassed the $40,400 goal in the annual Catholic Charities Campaign and out of 13 counties was the first to go over the top.

County truly represents the sacrifices of many of its best citizens."

Father Grady noted the Catholic Charities Campaign has three more weeks in the final phase. "Throughout Warren County," he continued, "we have 1,350 remaining Catholic families to visit and explain the charitable needs and ambitions of the Diocese of Erie."

The Very Rev. Alfred M.

Bauer, pastor of St. Joseph Church in Warren, expressed his admiration for the generosity of his parishioners and the untiring efforts of the volunteer workers. "St. Joseph has almost reached its goal," he said, "because our people are responsive to the needs of their neighbors and because volunteer workers know they are doing Christ's work in helping the poor."

The five parishes that contributed to the $40,670 pledged at Tuesday's meeting are: St. Joseph, $15,600; (goal $16,400) Holy Redeemer, pastor, the Rev. Joseph H. Seybold, $11,270 (goal $12,700), St. Clara and St. Anthony in Clarendon, pastor, the Rev. John T. Carter, $9,775 (goal $5,000), St. John in Tidoute, the Rev. J. Arthur Fleckenstein, $1,825 (goal $3,800).

The minimum goal of the annual campaign for 1968 is $1,250,000. An expansion of the social services of Catholic Charities is planned to include professionally trained personnel. Marriage counselling, adoption services and help for alcoholics will require more assistance. A home will be purchased in Crawford County for unwed pregnant girls.

Two new residences for the aged will be built, one in Sharon and the other in DuBois. An extension to St. Marys Home for the Aged in Erie is also planned.

N.Y. Attorney Is Indicted

RIPLEY, N.Y. — Anthony J. Spann, 46, a Dunkirk attorney who resides in Westfield, has been indicted for an illegal abortion allegedly performed on a 37-year-old Town of Ripley woman on Jan. 21.

Spann was arrested at the scene by state police and sheriff's deputies. He was arraigned before Ripley peace justice William J. Saunders who committed Spann to jail pending a preliminary examination Jan. 30. The attorney was freed on $2,500 bond.

Spann was bound over for action of the grand jury following an adjournment before Justice Saunders Feb. 20. He is scheduled to answer the felony charge Monday before Chautauque County Judge Edwin G. O'Connor in Mayville.

Akeley Democrat Honored For Work with Teenagers

Mrs. Bettie Putnam, of Akeley, secretary of the Warren County Democratic Committee, is the recipient of an award from Stephen Russell Reed, president of the Pennsylvania Teenage Dems, for her meritorious leadership rendered in the name of the Teenage Dems, and for special services and outstanding work with young people. The award was announced at the March meeting of the County Democratic Committee, held Tuesday evening in the courthouse.

In connection with the award, Mrs. Putnam announced preliminary plans for the organization of a Teenage Democratic group here, and a meeting has been scheduled for March 24 for this purpose.

County chairman Tom Conway stated that Max Gabreski of Oil City, who was the Democratic delegate to Con Con, will be the speaker at the April meeting of the County Democratic Committee, and plans are underway to schedule the meeting for April 2, at a place to be announced. All Democratic workers are invited and a buffet lunch will be served.

Conway also stated that he will be in Harrisburg March 20 to attend a statewide meeting of Pennsylvania Democratic County Chairmen.

Concluding the meeting, Fred Cusimano, Warren advertising and public relations man and a member of the executive committee of the county Democratic organization, told of some of his experiences in Erie county politics, where he worked on the campaigns of both Congressman Joseph Vigorito and State Sen. William G. Besler.

SOCIAL
Wanderings
by Marion Honhart

DINING OUT THIS WEEK? . . . Well, if you're not, it would seem that several opportunities for the sampling of superb cooking will be missed. St. Patrick is more than being remembered, it seems his is a constant presence this week. For instance: Tonight you can dine in his honor on Turkey 'N Biscuits prepared and served by the Rotarians and their Rotary Anns at Warren Area High School from 5 to 7 o'clock. . . . Tickets at the door are $1.50 adults, and $1 children under 12.

Then Sunday, there is the very popular and traditional St. Patrick's Day Dinner at Holy Redeemer which will feature baked ham, scalloped potatoes, green applesauce, cole slaw, rolls, coffee or tea, Boston cream pie, and favors for the children. It will be served in the social hall of the church. . . . Dinner from 1 to 2:30 p.m., and supper from 4 to 6:30 p.m.

But, that isn't all, a note just came to my desk which says that this Saturday evening, in the social hall of St. Luke's Church, Youngsville, from 5:30 to 8 o'clock, "Las Chicas" (a group of Spanish language students at YHS) will serve a supper of Spaghetti and Meatballs, lettuce salad, rolls, coffee, milk and cake. . . . though whether the Patron Saint of Ireland is even being thought of in this south-of-the-border atmosphere they didn't say! Tickets are $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children, with pre-schoolers free. The students are raising funds for their planned trip to Mexico this June. (And, incidentally, they are interested in hearing from individuals 21 or over, female, or married couples, who would like to go along as additional chaperones. . . . Call Mrs. Mabel Dickey at 563-9277 for further information.)

And, believe it or not, a representative of the Lander Boy Scout Troop No. 26 just stopped by to announce that it is this Saturday, March 16th, when they, too, will have their Spaghetti Supper for the public! It will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. in the Lander Community House. . . . There is no set price, but donations will be accepted.

Well, as long as we are on the subject, I may as well remind you that Monday evening, March 18th, a Soup and Pie supper will be served by the Starbrick Parent Teachers Association at the Starbrick Fire Hall from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. The menu is homemade soup, crispy bread sticks and crackers, coffee and milk, and for dessert, home baked pie. . . . Tickets at the door will be 75 cents adults, and 35 cents for children 12 and under.

Now I think this concludes the local calendar of gourmet delights about to be served for the pleasure of the public, for the immediate present, anyway.

OPEN CHURCH AND RECEPTION will be observed for the wedding of Edna M. Gage and James E. Fox in the Cable Hollow Church, Tuesday, March 19th at 7:30 p.m. The reception will immediately follow at the Russell Fire Hall. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Gage of Akeley, and the groom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fox of Akeley.

THE SEARCH IS ON for these WHS 1943 classmates: Jake Barris, Grace Carlson, Fernando Carvalho, Beatrice Corelli, Rachel Ruth, Wendell Hamblin, Geraldine Lindberg, Stanley Kuzi, Ruth Nathaniel, Lucille Pitt, John Retzer, Joseph Saraceno, Norman Shoaff. Anyone who has any knowledge of the foregoing is asked to call Bonny Jones at 723-6585 after 5 p.m. The class is preparing for a reunion on July 20th, at Jackson Valley Country Club.

WHS A Cappella Choir
Annual Concert Tonight

Tonight at 8:15 the stage curtain will rise in the Warren Area High School Auditorium for the annual Winter Concert of the A Cappella Choir. Assisting in the program will be the WHS Orchestra. Mr. Carroll A. Fowler is director of the choir and Mr. Daniel Harpster is director of the orchestra.

Featured in the program and perhaps the highlight of the evening, will be the choral selections from "Olivier!" by Bart-Leyden. The selections are: Consider Yourself at Home; Where Is Love? Oom-Pah-Pah; As Long As He Needs Me, with Margaret Kates, soprano soloist; Pd Do Anything; Who Will Buy My Roses? with Richard Huber, baritone soloist; Consider Yourself at Home.

Another particularly lovely offering will be Solweig's Song, from Grieg's Peer Gynt Suite, with Nancy Niedzialek, soprano soloist, and Gloria Hahn, the accompanist. Still another will be, The Lord's Prayer by Malotte, with John Tillard, bass soloist.

Visiting Nurses

Mrs. Robert Probst, president, conducted the regular meeting of the Warren Visiting Nursing Association on Tuesday afternoon, March 12, at the Municipal Building. Sixteen members attended. Business included committee reports of activities.

Mrs. Warner Lindell, nursing supervisor, reported a recent increase in the number of cases requiring physical therapy. Records also show a greater number of cases demanding comprehensive nursing care, which includes changing of dressings, assisting in patient rehabilitation, and instructing families in the care of patients.

Mrs. Lindell also reported that the Medical Advisory Board has revised and approved the Medical Emergency Orders referring to the medication which a nurse may carry with her and the treatments which a nurse is permitted to perform in a home in case of a specific emergency.

Mrs. Patricia Brown, secretary to the Warren Visiting Nursing Association, and Mrs. Lindell plan to attend the Institute of Home Health Services, Webster Hall Hotel, Pittsburgh, March 25. The Montefiore Hospital Association of Western Pa., and the Allegheny County Medical Society will co-sponsor this institute.

NEW OFFICERS PRESIDE AT MEETING

More Than A Social Club

The Forest Service Women's Club was organized in 1967 to promote friendship and association among the wives of all Forest Service personnel or women employees of the Allegheny National Forest.

The club has regular monthly meetings and also sponsors other activities of interest such as the defensive driving course which is now being given by Mr. Jobe Felton and Mr. Forest Corney at 7:30 on the second floor of the YMCA. The course consists of 4 classes: March 5, 19, 26, and April 2. It isn't too late to join the class. Forest Service men and women are invited to attend the last 3 classes.

The Forest Service Women's Club met at 8 on March 12 at Penelec for a demonstration given by Mrs. Overturf, the

WSCS Special Program, March 28th

At that time, Mrs. Harold L. Knappenberger Jr. of Franklin, will be the guest speaker. The wife of the pastor of First Methodist Church in Franklin, Mrs. Knappenberger has traveled around the world with her husband.

The topic of her program will be "People Around the World" and she will illustrate it with color slides taken in Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Thailand, Sarawak (Sibu), and India. In each of these cultural backgrounds, Mrs. Knappenberger studied the mission of the church.

Mrs. James Cousins will lead appropriate devotions. Hostesses will be members of the Robert Strawbridge Circle, with Mrs. Peter Dudick and Mrs. Donald Hedman the chairmen. All members of the community, men and women, are invited to attend the meeting.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The woman who lives next door has a long nose which she loves to stick in other people's business. I have disliked this woman ever since I was a little girl. I have been married for over a year and am about eight weeks pregnant. Every time Mrs. Long nose sees me she pats my stomach and says, "Anything in the oven yet?" She makes me so mad I'd like to belt her in the mouth. Yesterday when she pulled that "oven bit" I managed, miraculously, to keep my temper and say sweetly... "No, nothing..."

Soon I will have to tell people I am expecting but I want to do it in my own way, and not be backed into a corner by a nosy neighbor.

How can I avoid answering a direct question? — BURNED

DEAR B: You are under no obligation to answer personal questions. Simply evade the question by saying, "When I am ready to make an announcement, you'll know." Then change the subject.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work in a nursing home and there are some wonderful old folks out here. The Christmas holidays are the happiest time of the year because plants and flowers and gifts and cards and visitors come pouring in. Everyone is in a good mood. The all seem to perk up and we have fewer patients confined to their beds at Christmas than any other time.

But the holiday spirit soon wears off and this is what I am writing about. Why don't children whose parents are in nursing homes give a moment's thought to these folks during the other eleven months of the year? If it weren't for Christmas and Mother's Day it's as if nobody knows they are alive.

One frail little woman who has three sons and a daughter living within 40 miles of here has been re-reading the same two letters since last August. The whole family piles in on Christmas Day and then she doesn't see or hear from anyone until her birthday — seven months later. I feel so sorry for this sweet old woman that I have asked my own children to visit her.

If I see this letter in print I will feel better. Thank you. — CHICAGO

DEAR CHICAGO: So will I, and here it is. Guilty sons and daughters might feel worse, however, but if they get the message, that's all right with me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever we go out to a party my wife has the idea I should spend the whole evening entertaining her. If I should walk off for five minutes to talk to someone she gets a hurt expression on her face. Then she is upset the remainder of the night and nobody has a good time.

When we got home last evening she gave me a long lecture on how it looks to other people when a man ignores his own wife and plays up to younger women. Bla bla bla... Finally I walked into the other room and started to read the paper. She came in after me, grabbed the paper out of my hand and shouted, "You deserve a wife like Ann Landers."

What do you think she meant by that? — FEET OF CLAY

DEAR FEET: Under the circumstances I don't think her remark was much of a compliment to either of us. But I'll forgive her if you will.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

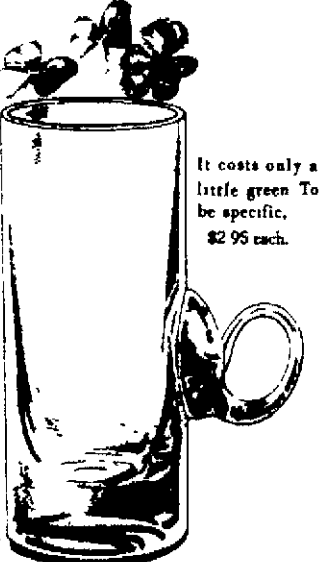

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

'Spring Happens' In Russell Fashions By Morrison's

One of the most delightful events of the season was "Spring Happenings", a fashion show presented by the Russell-Lander Pre-School Mothers Club. It was held in the Russell school cafeteria and fashions were provided by Morrisons.

These were emphasized with striking color accents. Mrs. McDonald narrated the program while the models strolled across the decorated stage of giant balloon flowers.

Models for the numerous outfits were Mrs. Weston Wilcox, Mrs. Larry Larson, Mrs. Donald VanOrd, Mrs. James Carlson and Rosemary Reiff, also student nurses from the Warren State Hospital, Patricia Ann Allison, Carol Betz, Barbara Jane Crilley, Elaine Jo Ann Callard, Joyce Ann Potonic. Program chairmen were presidents from both clubs, Mrs. Charles Gray and Mrs. Robert Knopf.

In charge of tickets were Mrs. Lyle Porter and Mrs. Larry Larson, with Mrs. Joseph Stawski, Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Roy Hitchcock selling tickets at the door.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Sherwood Olson, Mrs. Lois Babcock, Mrs. Raymond Stanton and Mrs. John Feeney. The decorating committee was composed of Mrs. Robert

Final Concert In Titusville Concert Series, March 21st

The final concert of the Titusville Concert Series' current season will take place on Thursday, March 21, in Titusville High School auditorium at 8 o'clock. This concert will feature music by Mozart, Beethoven and Bartok played by the Alard Quartet.

The most recent in a distinguished line of quartets to emerge from the Juillard School of Music, the Alard Quartet was formed in 1954 under the guidance of Hans Letz. The members of the Quartet have been artists-in-residence at the University of Texas, Wilmington College and the University of Canterbury in Christchurch, New Zealand. Since 1962 the Quartet has been in residence at The Pennsylvania State University.

In the past decade the Alard Quartet has been acclaimed by critics both in the United States and abroad. Last November, at their most recent Carnegie Hall Concert, for example, Raymond Ericson of the NEW YORK TIMES described them as "four admirably balanced instrumentalists, who brought vitality, cohesion and solid musicianship to their readings." (11-15-67) and the critic for THE HOUSTON POST called them "one of the finest ensembles of its kind."

Knopf, Mrs. Lois Babcock, Mrs. Feeney and Mrs. John Christensen Jr.

Mrs. Ronald Wilkins, Mrs. Feeney, Mrs. Knopf, and Mrs. Edward Spiller had charge of publicity. Winners of the door prizes, donated by Morrisons, were Mrs. Ernest Hagenlocher, Mrs. Clair Himes and Mrs. Joseph Stawski.

The Quartet has concertized extensively and has appeared in major American cities as well as at leading universities throughout the country. It has appeared as soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony and has been engaged for the American Music Festival of the National Gallery in Washington, D.C., four times. The Alard Quartet is the only chamber group ever to win the coveted Young Artists Award of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

In 1961 the Quartet made a nation-wide tour of Mexico under the auspices of the United States Information Agency. During its residency in New Zealand the Quartet toured under the auspices of the New Zealand Chamber Music Federation and was featured at the 1964 Auckland Festival.

The Alard Quartet boasts a continuity of personnel unmatched by any leading American ensemble and in the years of their association has built an extensive repertoire of music from the standard literature as well as many new and unusual works.

Personnel of the Quartet are: Donald Hopkins, First Violin; Joanne Zagst, Second Violin; Raymond Page, Viola; and Leonard Feldman, Cello.

If tickets are still needed they can be obtained at the box office the evening of the performance.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.
When the defense failed to capitalize on a roadblock that had been placed in declarer's path by Mother Nature, the latter recorded a game on the score sheet.

West opened the jack of spades against South's four heart contract and when it held the first trick, he continued with the ten. East overtook with the queen and cashed the ace on which West discarded the deuce of diamonds.

After lengthy deliberation, East continued with a fourth round of spades. He reasoned that if his partner held as many as three hearts headed by the ten, the spade play would promote a trump trick for the defense.

South ruffed in with the ten of hearts, however, cashed the ace of diamonds and crossed over to the ace of clubs to discard his remaining club on the king of diamonds. A heart finesse was taken and when the king dropped under the ace on the next round, declarer claimed the rest of the tricks.

In the post-mortem discussion, it was observed that a club shift by East at trick four would have defeated the contract. West will put up the queen of clubs to dislodge dummy's ace before South is able to unblock the ace of diamonds, and the latter is unable to obtain a discard for his losing club.

East contended that West should have discarded the nine of clubs on the third round of spades to suggest that he had an honor in that suit, in which case the club shift would have become more clearly indicated.

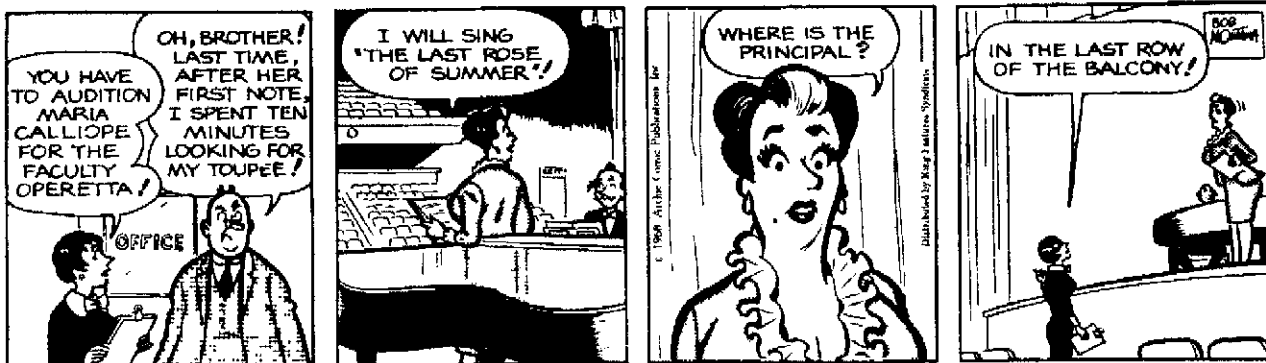

West countered by pointing out that his actual discard of the deuce of diamonds revealed that he did not have the ace of that suit and, therefore, East should lead a club regardless, for unless West holds the queen the defense will be unable to win a trick in the suit.

It was observed that West could have assisted his partner by trumping the third round of spades in order to lead a club himself. This might not have worked out well, however, if South has the missing honors in clubs and East the ace of diamonds. In any case, East's course of action appears to be clearly marked out at trick four—for he can hardly lose by shifting to a club.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—What you think will be as important as how you act and react. Control emotions, shun gossip, let your natural exuberance for living shine in the right corners.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—A good day for bestowing favors upon others, for receiving them yourself. For a change of pace, try a hobby. It may one day prove remunerative.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Budget time as well as other assets. The hours, wrongly used, can disrupt routine and steady achievement. Pay no attention to pessimists and belittlers.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Especially favored now: Personal relationships, home and family concerns, social activities. You should have a bright day.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Fine solar influences. Cultivate those things that enrich the mind and soul. Many things change, but these qualities will remain, to give you greater strength and surer footing.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—If faced with distractions, temptations or annoyances, call upon the Virgin's innate wisdom and reasoning powers. By taking all philosophically, you will find peace, have a happy day!

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Don't change plans before discussion with others concerned; interpret words carefully. While some may seem to have hidden meanings, they are not necessarily deceiving; may merely need clarification.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—Don't make agreements with "strings" attached. You must be free to deviate from previous plans when it seems advisable. Negotiate from strength, backed by firm resolve.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—It's your day to make what you will of it. Yes, there are trends, tendencies. But you need not follow anything you consider unsound, illogical. Be a believer, and go forward.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Trailing off into seclusion is no solution to a difficulty, nor is looking upon the dark side. Get busy with the Capricornian's healthy persistence and organizing ability. Things will work out.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Call on experience—your own and that of others. You will find it helpful now. Use your imagination, too. And open a new door to learning and useful experiment.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—If dubious about certain matters, give them further study and, if necessary, seek expert advice. In leisure time, devote yourself to a hobby for a change of pace.

YOU BORN TODAY are the conscientious type who tries to make things enjoyable for all, lucrative and pleasant for those whom you love. You appreciate comforts; are a sound reformer, an expressive defender of the underdog; a keen thinker, with quick wit. You are willing to tackle difficult tasks but sometimes, needlessly, lack confidence in their outcome. You are especially suited to work that aids mankind—assisting in hospitals, institutions of learning, humanitarian causes generally. Birthdate of: Johann Strauss, composer; Albert Einstein, physicist.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

FALSE PREGNANCY

Pseudocyesis is one of the most unusual conditions a woman can develop. Mrs. Jones believes herself to be pregnant, but she is not—even though all the early symptoms exist. Menstruation stops, weight is gained, and morning sickness begins. Changes occur in the breasts, the abdomen becomes distended, and a lordotic posture is assumed, with tummy protruding.

Unless the true condition is detected, labor pains come at the end of nine months, and the woman may go to the hospital for delivery. The longer the "misconception" continues the greater the shock on learning the truth. But the majority accept the situation well when examination reveals no pregnancy. Some start to menstruate the next day.

Physicians often are fooled, also. Twenty-seven women with pseudocyesis were examined by 40 medicos. There were nine misdiagnoses made by 16 physicians, and four different medical men told one woman that she was pregnant. But that was not all. Pregnancy tests were positive in four cases, demonstrating that the laboratory is not infallible.

Mistakes along this line are more likely to happen during the early stages because, with each passing month, it usually becomes obvious that the enlarged abdomen is due to bloating and not to a growing fetus.

Pseudocyesis is a form of hysteria. The woman has an unconscious desire to be pregnant, but does not care to go through the ordeal. According to psychiatrists, the basic need or drive to reproduce may be repulsed by the thought of childbirth.

Desire stimulates the glandular system to simulate pregnancy and to create the physical changes that occur. This is an example of mind over matter.

The aftereffects of the experience depend upon whether the woman has any insight into the emotional aspect. If she understands the psychic background of pseudocyesis, she goes about her business normally; otherwise, recurrences may be expected.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

TV VIEWING DISTANCE

W.S. writes: My grandchildren sit about one foot away from my 21-inch television set. Could this be harmful to their eyes?

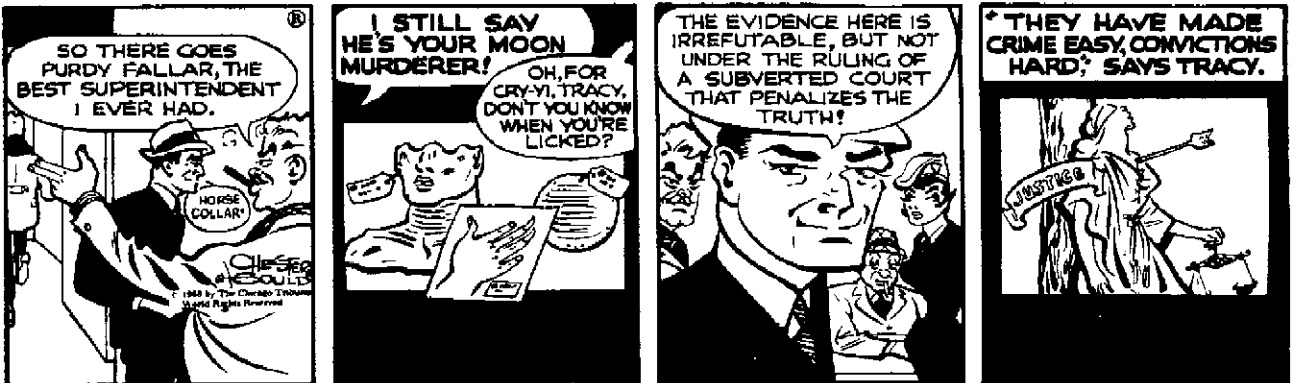

REPLY: They are sitting too close. At present, the public health service is conducting a survey to determine whether color television sets give off minute amounts of X-ray emissions. If radiation exists, it is likely to go in a downward direction, just at the level, where the child is sitting. It does not harm the eaves.

ADOLESCENCE

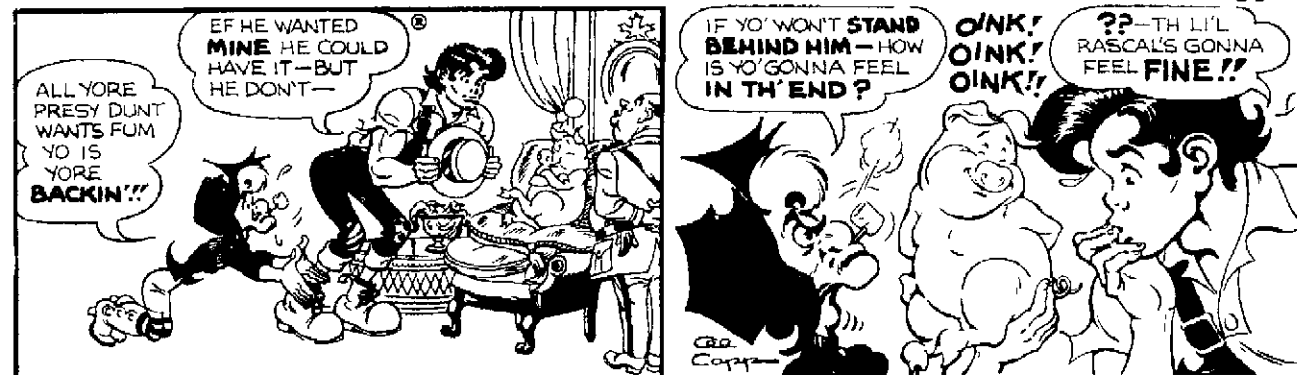

Mrs. V.K.R. writes: At what age does puberty begin in boys?

REPLY: Between 14 and 16.

PART I - The Judiciary

Con Con Proposals Go to Voters In April Primary Election

(Editor's Note: Pennsylvania voters will be asked to pass judgment April 23 on the Constitutional Conventions' recommendations for modernizing four key articles of the state's 94-year-old basic charter. The convention's proposals will appear on the ballot as five highly condensed questions. In a four-part series, beginning today, The Associated Press describes in depth each proposal.)

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's Constitutional Convention adopted a far-reaching court reform plan only after many long and bitter hours of debate.

No issue before the convention's 163 delegates generated more controversy than judicial reform. Particularly contentious issues within the over-all plan were a selection system for judges and reform of the minor judiciary.

The proposal that finally emerged did not please everyone. However, many delegates, including former Gov. William W. Scranton, hailed it as a tremendous step forward.

Scranton, who served as co-chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said "a tremendous amount" of the proposal was as good as anything that could be found in the United States today.

"The unified court system provision is as good as any in the nation," Scranton said, "and the minor judiciary proposal is the most flexible reform plan ever written."

"I say, in no uncertain terms, if you compare this proposal with any other state, you have something you can be extremely proud of."

Here are the major provisions of the proposal:

Unified Court System — The State Supreme Court, the highest in the state, would be given wide administrative powers over all other courts.

The unified system would embrace the Supreme Court, the Superior Court, a new Commonwealth Court, district Courts of Common Pleas, community courts in some instances, justice of the peace courts and municipal and traffic courts in Philadelphia.

The legislature would have the power to create new courts if they are needed.

Seven judges each would staff the Supreme and Superior courts while the makeup of the new Commonwealth Court would be left up to the legislature.

Judicial Selection — The question of whether statewide judges should continue to be elected, or selected under a so-called merit system would be decided by a special referendum in the 1969 Primary Election.

If the people elect the merit system, statewide judicial openings would be filled by appointment by the governor, who would pick a nominee from a list of 10 to 20 candidates submitted to him by a bipartisan judicial qualifications commission.

At the district level, judges would continue to be elected as they are now. After their first term, however, they would seek re-election in nonpartisan, uncontested merit elections.

Minor Judiciary — Voters in all judicial districts, except Philadelphia, on their own initiative, would be given the choice of retaining justice of the peace courts or replacing them with community courts.

Where JP courts are retained, however, new magisterial districts would be created by the legislature, with one JP in each district. This plan would reduce the current number of JPs from about 4,000 to 1,000.

The proposal also would abolish the fee system, putting all JPs on straight salaries; require JPs to take a training course and pass an examination before taking office; and give the Supreme Court power to supervise all members of the minor judiciary.

In Philadelphia, the 28-member magistrates court would be abolished in favor of a 22-member municipal court and a six-member traffic court. Existing magistrates, however, would be permitted to staff the new courts for the balance of their current terms and one additional term.

Voters, by their own initiative, could call for a special referendum to decide whether a community court, staffed by legally trained judges, should be established instead of municipal and traffic courts.

Review Board — A special inquiry and review board would be created to make investigations and recommendations to the Supreme Court on matters dealing with the suspension, removal, discipline or compulsory retirement of judges.

Retirement — All judges would be required to retire at the age of 70. Retired judges or justices, however, could be assigned to temporary judicial duty, if they so desired, to help ease court backlogs.

Ethics — Judges and justices would be prohibited from operating private law practices, or holding office in a political party or political organization.

Appeals — Defendants in all court cases would be guaranteed the right of appeal to a higher court. At present, the right of appeal is restricted to cases heard by courts of record.

Tomorrow: Local Government.

Shafer's Platform Post Goes to Sen. Hugh Scott

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer has agreed to relinquish a post on the Republican Platform Committee in favor of U. S. Sen. Hugh Scott, sources close to the chief executive said Wednesday.

The agreement was reached Sunday in a private meeting between Shafer and Scott prior to joining other national Republican leaders in a conference on the GOP presidential picture.

In return, Shafer would assume the governor's conventional role as chairman of the 64-man Pennsylvania delegation at the GOP National Convention beginning Aug. 5 in Miami, Fla., the sources said.

Scott previously had been in line for the post in view of Shafer's plans to go to the convention with an uncommitted Pennsylvania delegation tied to him as a favorite son candidate.

The reversal of roles was prompted by two developments on the GOP political front.

The first was the reluctance of GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss to designate one of the nation's 26 Republican governors as co-chairman of the Platform Committee.

Shafer had been backed by his gubernatorial counterparts for the prestigious position.

The second was the unexpected withdrawal from the GOP presidential race of Michigan Gov. George Romney.

Scott emerged from the Rockefeller meeting in New York City and urged the Empire State chief executive to begin actively campaigning for the presidency.

Shafer and Scott both agreed that the senator could more actively work for Rockefeller as a member of the Platform Committee, the Harrisburg sources said.

Their feeling was that it would have been difficult for him to do so as chairman of a non-committed state delegation with a favorite-son candidate of its own.

Each state gets two positions on the Platform Committee, which expected to be headed by U. S. Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois.

Shafer has announced his favorite-son role to keep the delegation uncommitted when it reaches the convention.
